The Will of Richard Davis

Contents:

- The Will
- Inventory of Richard Davis' estate
- Children of Richard Davis
- Slaves of Richard Davis
- Richard Davis in Caroline County, Virginia
- Was Thomas Davis the father of Richard Davis?
- A case study in Richard Davis' handwriting

The North Carolina State Archives has two versions of the Richard Davis will: one in the barely-legible handwriting of Richard Davis himself, the other the official copy made by a court clerk. The clerk had such difficulty in deciphering Davis' handwriting that he noted at the end of his transcription:

> So many imperfections & Incorrectness > in the above Will together with nonsensical
> Sentences that the fee for Copying is double the Gaige.
> R:S

Both the original and the clerk's copy may be found in the North Carolina State Archives, box CR.044.801.9, in a folder marked "Davis, Richard 1761".

The following is my own transcription of the original, since the court clerk's version introduces many errors, especially in the rendition of names. I have kept all spelling as in the original; I have also attempted to maintain paragraphs and line breaks, although I cannot guarantee that they will display correctly on all browsers. Illegible or obliterated words are indicated with triple question marks, ???, and questionable words with a single question mark in square brackets, [?]. Footnotes and my comments are in italics in [square brackets]. A discussion of several points follows the transcription.

- Court clerk's transcription of the will
- Image of the court clerk's copy (400 Kbytes)

Notes:

[1] Three words obliterated; the court clerk's version has "before it is".

[2] Patience's married surname has provided endless amusement for transcribers of the Richard Davis will. The court clerk renders it variously as Coyema, Coyns, and Joyner; Zae H. Gwynn thinks it is Coyny. An analysis of Davis' handwriting strongly suggests that the initial letter is a T. The interpretation of the name as "Toyns" is supported by the fact that William Tynes, a neighbor of Richard Davis' son Solomon, had a wife named Patience and a young daughter named Jeriah. These are very probably the "Patien Toyns" and "Jeriah Toyns" referred to in the will.

[3] Mary's married surname is even more difficult than Patience's:  . The initial letter appears to have been written during a hand spasm, and could be a C, an L, a P, or a T. The rest of the name could be read "onsalva", "ensalon", "onsaten", "ensalea" or similarly. Unlike the surname "Toyns", there does not seem to be any Granville County name that resembles any of these possibilities. This may not be surprising, however, since Mary may have been one of the children left behind in Caroline County, Virginia; see comments below.

[4] Three words obliterated; the court clerk's version has "she never comes".

[5] The court clerk's version reads the date as 1761, and he had a less faded copy than I have. The last digit looks like a zero to me. It may be worth noting that the phrase "16 Day of June 1760" appears to have been written with a different pen (although by the same hand) from the rest of the will. See the discussion of Caroline County below.

Inventory of the Estate of Richard Davis

Absalom Davis and Augustine Davis, sons and executors of Richard Davis, were ordered to conduct an inventory of the estate of their father, and did so, returning the following document to the Granville County court. The inventory is dated "Febuary 8th", but no year is specified. This is unfortunate, since the inventory would probably have been conducted shortly after the death of Elizabeth Davis, Richard's widow. As far as I know, we have no other clue as to the date of Elizabeth's death. Each item in the inventory is followed by a horizontal line, as if leading to a valuation, but no values appear; perhaps a facing page has been lost.

The will speaks of eight children who have already "had their full part", three others who are being given special "Leges", and one, Gideon, who has died leaving at least three young sons in need of support. It mentions Richard's wife, but does not name her. (Subsequent tax lists suggest that her name was Elizabeth.)

The eight children who had already been given their inheritance are, in the order listed in the will:

- Keziah ("Kesiah"), married to a man named Devonport or Davenport. One Richard Davenport is occasionally associated with Richard Davis in court records from Caroline County, Virginia. This may be Keziah's husband or father-in-law.

- Patience ("Patien"), married to a Toyns. As mentioned in the footnotes, this is most likely Patience Tynes, wife of William Tynes, who lived in the same Island Creek neighborhood as three of Richard's sons. William Tynes died sometime between December 1760 (when he obtained a warrant for 700 acres of land in Granville County) and 6 June 1761 (when the survey for that land was returned to his widow Patience). William's estate underwent a sheriff's sale on 28 July 1762, suggesting that Patience too had died by then. Mentioned in the same paragraph of the will are two of Richard's granddaughters: Patience's daughter, Jeriah Tynes, who was later to marry John Jennings in South Carolina; and Levinah Davis, possibly a daughter of the deceased Gideon Davis, who was apparently living with the Tynes family at the time. William Tynes Jr., son of William and Patience, would marry his cousin Levinah Davis on 4 April 1778 in Granville County. Other children of William and Patience were Samuel, John, and Robert Fleming Tynes.
- Sophia ("Sofyah"), married to a Yancey, probably William Yancey. Several Yancey men appear on tax lists in Granville County during the 1750s and 1760s.
- Judy, not married at the time. Judy seems to be living with Richard and his wife at the time of the will. After Richard's death, she was to choose which of her brothers and sisters to live with. This may mean that she was underage, or more likely, that she was in poor health. Richard makes it clear that he expects her never to marry, and to die before the sibling with whom she lives.
- Augustine ("Agustain"), apparently the oldest son. It was his responsibility to look after the children of his deceased brother Gideon. In 1779, Augustine sold all his land in Granville County and moved his family to South Carolina. An Augustine Davis is found in Long Cane, 96 District, South Carolina, and is probably the same man.
- Cyrus remained in Virginia after his father moved to North Carolina. During the 1770s he and his wife Sarah lived in Louisa County, Virginia, where their daughter Keziah married Joseph Baynham in 1778. Cyrus moved to Kentucky in 1796, which is where he probably died.
- Solomon ("Sollomon") lived in Granville County until his death in about 1810. His will, which was just as quirky and headstrong as that of his father, provoked a long legal battle between two of Solomon's children, Joseph Pomfret Davis and Mary Ann (Davis) Hunt. Solomon lived near his sister Patience Tynes; he and his wife Elizabeth sold land to two of Patience's orphans, Samuel and William Tynes, during the 1760s and 1770s.
- Absolem ("Apsalam") appears with Richard Davis in some of the surviving records from Caroline County, Virginia, during the 1750s. An Absolem Davis also appears there in 1736, mentioned with other families connected with the Davises: Davenport, Terry, and Sullivent. Absalom Davis, son of Richard, married twice: once (about 1743) to Kesiah, with whom he had nine children, and later (about 1759) to Nancy Hackney, with whom he had three more. Most of this family moved to Wilkes County, Georgia (just across the Savannah River from Long Cane, South Carolina, where Augustine Davis wound up). Another Absalom Davis, probably a son of Solomon, remained in Granville County until at least 1819.

Richard's three children who apparently had not already received their inheritance were:

- Jeriah, married to a Terry. In Orange County, Virginia, a Stephen Terry is mentioned with wife Jeriah, in a 1746 deed. They moved eventually to York District, South Carolina, where Jeriah Terry, apparently a widow, appears on an 1783 tax list. Patience Tynes probably named her daughter Jeriah after this sister.
- Zacharias appears in Granville County records during the late 1750s and 1760s, sometimes as Zachariah. He may have died or moved away during that time, as there is nothing more on him in the Granville County records.
- Mary is the only heir not specifically called a son or daughter in the will. Her name appears twice, neither time with the adjective "daughter". (It might or might not be wise to attempt to read something into that fact, in view of the general oddness of the will.) The court clerk read her married surname as "Consolon", but the first letter could just as easily be an L or a P or a T. It is possible that Mary was not married at the time of the will, and that the name Consolon or whatever is a second given name, perhaps an English equivalent of Maria Consolata. It may be worth noting that Mary's nephew, Robert Fleming Tynes, named one of his daughters Consada.

- Richard's deceased son was:

- Gideon, who appears in Caroline County records in 1747. He probably died in that county, before Richard and his children moved to North Carolina. He was the father of three boys who were underage in 1760; he may also have been the father of Levinah Davis, mentioned in the paragraph on Patience.

Slaves of Richard Davis

The will mentions ten slaves, and the inventory mentions eleven. At least one slave mentioned in the will does not appear in the inventory, and may have died in the interim. Two slaves listed in the inventory are absent from the will; perhaps they were children born in the interim, or (more likely) old Richard simply forgot about them as he was writing his will.

In addition to the will and inventory, the Granville County tax lists are a good source of information about slaves. In theory, taxes were levied upon landowners for all adult white males and all slaves (of either gender and any age) in their households. Even free black landowners had to pay the tax on each non-white member of their families, as if they were their own slaves. Therefore, tax lists, where they survive, are supposed to offer complete records of blacks, but only partial records of whites. In practice, of course, many landowners lied to the tax agent about their slaves, and some tax lists simply count the slaves without naming them.

The slaves mentioned in the will and inventory are as follows, in alphabetical order:

- Ann ("An" in the will, probably the same as "Nany" in the inventory): described as a girl in 1760 and given to Richard's daughter Sophia Yancey. Ann/Nany does not appear on subsequent tax lists; however, in the will of Richard's son Solomon (1810), a slave named Anne is given to Solomon's granddaughter Maryann Glover, along with three of Anne's children: Harrod, Wiley, and Keziah. Solomon gives another slave, also named Anne, to his daughter Mary Ann Hunt. Either of these might be the same Ann.
- Doll ("Dol" in the will): described as a girl in 1760 and given to Richard's son Cyrus Davis. Cyrus does not appear in subsequent tax lists.
- Isbell: described as a girl in 1760 and given to Richard's daughter Patience Tynes. Patience probably died before her mother Elizabeth Davis did, and so never owned Isbell. Isbell should have then gone, at Elizabeth's death, to Patience's children; but as orphans, these children were scattered among several guardians, and it is not known what became of Isbell.
- Judah ("Judy" in the will, "Juday" in the inventory): described as a woman in 1760 and given to Richard's daughter Patience Tynes. In 1762, after Patience's death but before the death of Richard's widow Elizabeth, Judah is listed as Elizabeth's tax liability in the household of her son Absalom. A slave named "Jude" is still there on a 1763 tax list.
- Lucy: described as a girl in 1760 and given to Richard's daughter Keziah Davenport. She is still Elizabeth Davis' tax liability in 1762, and is in Absalom Davis' household in 1763.
- Merica (or "America" in some tax lists): described as a boy in 1760 and given to Richard's daughter Judy Davis. Richard clearly expected Merica to outlive his daughter, and to go, after Judy's death, to the sibling who took care of Judy. This appears to have been Solomon Davis, because in his 1810 will he bequeaths both "Old America" and "Young America" to his daughter Mary Ann Hunt. Since this is fifty years later, "Old America" is presumably the same person as Richard Davis' "Merica". Solomon's will describes Old America as a doctor, and is expected to continue to "doctor all my children and their families," even though he has been given to Mary Ann. Young America would appear to be Old America's son.
- Minor ("Myner" in the will): described as a "fellow" in 1760 and was to be sold to the highest bidder within the Davis family. This would appear to have been Absalom, since "Miner" is still listed with him on a 1763 tax list.
- Peter: described as a boy in 1760 and given to Richard's son Solomon. However, Peter appears neither in the inventory nor in Solomon's household on any tax list, nor does he figure in Solomon's 1810 will. He may have died shortly after Richard did.

- Phoebe ("Feby" in the inventory): not mentioned in the will, but shows up on the inventory. No Feby or Phoebe appears with any Davis child in the tax lists, although a Phebe is listed with the Davises' neighbor Michael Satterwhite.
- Violet ("Vilate" in the inventory): not mentioned in the will, but shows up on the inventory. A "Vilet" appears in Solomon Davis' household in 1762 and 1763.
- Windsor ("Wiser" or "old Winser" in the will, "Winser" in the inventory and on tax lists): given to Richard's son Augustine for the purpose of supporting the three sons of Richard's deceased son Gideon. However, Augustine Davis is never listed with any slaves in the tax lists of 1762 and 1763.
- Windsor ("boy Winser" in the will): given to Richard's son Augustine. Again, Augustine never declares any slaves in subsequent tax lists. He may have taken the two Windsors with him when he moved to South Carolina in 1779.

Richard Davis in Caroline County, Virginia

Richard Davis, in his will, claimed to be "of Cariline County", even though his will was probated in Granville County, North Carolina. Caroline County, Virginia, is unfortunately one of the "burned counties" whose local records were destroyed during the Civil War. All that survives from the eighteenth century are a few wills and a set of court order books. Richard Davis and his sons Absalom and Gideon appear in those order books, as does Richard's son-in-law William Tynes. The Caroline County order books were abstracted during the 1960s and 1970s by John Frederick Dorman. The following items are taken from his abstracts.

The oldest surviving record of a Richard Davis in Caroline County comes from Order Book 1732-1740, page 59 (this is from part 1, page 29 of Dorman's abstracts), dated 8 March 1732/3:

> Robert Baber petitioning for administration of the estate of Joseph Andrews, certificate is granted him for obtaining letters of administration.
> It's ordered John Wyatt, James Terry, Henry Issbell and Richd. Davis appraise the estate of Joseph Andrews.

From Order Book 1732-1740, page 341 (part 2, page 40 of Dorman's abstracts), dated 14 May 1736:

> The last will and testament of Thomas Terry was proved by Richard Davenport, John Suillivent and Absalom Davis, witnesses thereto.

Note the association of both Richard and Absalom Davis with the Terry family, and also Richard Davenport; recall that two of Richard's sons-in-law were named Terry and Davenport.

Richard Davis appears several more times in the order books during the 1740s and 1750s. His last entry may be the most revealing. This is from Order Book 1754-1758, pages 342-343 (part 2, page 78 of Dorman's abstracts), and is dated 9-10 March 1758:

> Action of debt. John Turner agt. James Terry, Richd. Davis, Henry Jones and Absalom Davis. Richd. and Absalom Davis say that they cannot deny they owe £100 current money. This judgment is to be discharged on the defendants' paying £50 current money with interest from 23 Jan 1750.

Later that same year, 1758, Richard's son Zacharias and son-in-law William Tynes begin appearing on tax lists in Granville County, North Carolina. By 1760 (few tax records survive from 1759), Richard himself and most of his children seem to have relocated to North Carolina. Could this large debt judgment against him have been the proximate cause of Richard's decision to leave Caroline County? It has been said that debt avoidance was one of the motivating factors during the entire westward expansion, and this may be a case in point.

It is interesting to note that in Richard's will, two of his daughters are given a share of the estate provided that they come and get it. This suggests that Jeriah Terry and Mary Consolea (or however one reads her name) may have remained in Caroline County, Virginia, when the rest of the family migrated to North Carolina.

Richard may have actually written his will while he was still living in Caroline County, but did not date or sign it, or acquire witnesses, until he was in Granville County. The date, on the last line of the will, appears to have been written in a lighter ink than the rest of the will, although in the same handwriting. If this is the case, perhaps his daughters Jeriah and Mary had already lost touch with their father before Richard's move to North Carolina, their husbands having migrated elsewhere. For example, Stephen Terry, probable husband of Jeriah, had land transactions in Orange County, Virginia, as early as 1746.

Was Thomas Davis the father of Richard Davis?

Some Davis family accounts say that Richard Davis came from County Carmarthen, Wales, to coastal Virginia and then to Granville County, North Carolina; and that Richard's father, Thomas Davis, joined him there. A Thomas Davis died in Granville County sometime between 20 August 1754 (when he made out his will; see below) and 7 March 1758, when the will was probated. The will mentions four sons: John, Thomas, Rubin, and Richard, along with a daughter Mary and wife Elizabeth. It has been assumed that the Richard Davis mentioned in this will was the same Richard Davis who himself died in Granville County in 1761.

However, two entries in the Granville County court minutes show that this is not the same Richard. The court minutes (the originals of which are now missing) were abstracted in 1896 by Thomas McAdory Owen and published in his History and Genealogies of Old Granville County; the following entries appear on page 191 of Owen's abstracts, under the year 1758:

> Sept. 21/58. Daniel Underwood ord. to take care of Jno. & Richard Davis, orphans of Thomas Davis until next Ct.
> Dec. 20/58. Jno. 14 yrs, Thomas 12, Richard 7, & Mary 5, orphans of Thomas Davis decd, bound to Daniel Underwood according to Law.

Therefore it is clear that Richard Davis, son of Thomas Davis, was barely ten years old when the other Richard Davis, grandfather, died in 1761. Thomas may have been a brother or even a nephew of our Richard, but was certainly not his father. If Davis family researchers have concluded that Richard Davis came from County Carmarthen, Wales, based on the Thomas Davis will, then that evidence is now in question, and Richard's origins may need to be reconsidered.

Daniel Underwood, named as guardian of the four children, was one of the executors of Thomas Davis' will. For the record, the will follows:

> I Thomas Davis of Granville County Being Very sick > and Week In Body But in Parfit mind and memry Do
> Will and ordain this my last will and Testament as > Tuching such things as it has pleast God to bestoe

The Surname "Toyns": A Case Study in Richard Davis' Handwriting

The married name of Patience Davis has been read in many contradictory ways. The court clerk renders it variously as Coyema, Coyns, and Joyner; Zae H. Gwynn thinks it is Coyny. I have transcribed it as "Toyns", based upon the following analysis of Richard Davis' handwriting.

The surname occurs five times in the will. Three times it refers specifically to Patience: , and  ; once to "my daughter Toyns":  ; and once to Patience's daughter Jeriah:  . In four of these five instances of the name, the initial letter does resemble an upper-case C; in one (the second instance), it looks very much like a lower-case t.

Comparing this name with other occurrences of the upper-case C in the will, such as in the phrases "Cariline County"  and "County Court"  , makes it clear that Richard's C is characterized by a loop at the top, and not by the sharp vertical hook seen in the surname. On the other hand, the initial letter of the surname matches the only other two examples of an upper-case T in the will: the name of Richard's daughter Jeriah Terry  , and the phrase "all Their in Creas"  (note another fine example of a C). Therefore, the best interpretation of this letter is a T.

There is not much controversy about the middle three letters: They are clearly "oyn", and are rendered so in all transcriptions except one of the court clerk's ("Coyema"). The final letter is Richard's odd lower-case s, which occurs throughout the will, such as in the word "in Creas" above, and in the name Davis itself:
The best transcription for Patience's married surname is, therefore, Toyns.

Will of Richard Davis: The Original

The will covers both sides of a sheet of parchment 27 cm wide by 44 cm long. Each side had to be scanned in four pieces, which partially explains the mosaic quality of this image. In addition, the will was folded once horizontally and once vertically, causing some loss of legibility before the North Carolina Department of Archives and History pieced it back together and laminated it.

Marriages of Granville Co., NC 1753-1868; page 83 List the following:
Nancy Ramey & Absolom Davis Feb 22, 1797
Nancy Fullilove & Absolom Davis Feb 22, 1797

I can not find any history of a Ramey marrying Nancy Fullilove nor a Fullilove marrying a Nancy Ramey to explain this marriage on the same day.

I can not find a father for Nancy Ramey, but I can find a parent for Nancy Fullilove.

My belief is Nancy Fullilove married a Ramey, had four children and then married Absolom Davis. This whould explain the four children listed for Absolom Davis and Nancy Fullilove that were born before 1797

I am seeking someone to help support this theory.

Dave,
Did a little researching and this couldn't be the same Nancy who married Josiah Scott. This must be wrong on the genealogy, sorry.

Who is Richard Davis of Wilkes Co., Georgia?

Richard Davis appears in Wilkes Co., GA published tax records from 1785 through 1805. He resided in the same militia district as did Prudence (Davis) Barron, and in some years is even listed next door to her.

Richard Davis was married to Isabel

Middlesex County, Virginia

ford, who worked land adjoining that of Matthew Bentley.

Such interconnections should not surprise us. Riots and rebellions do not emerge from the air but are concocted by men who, in this society, perforce must meet and talk face-to-face. Indeed, Middlesex's small rebellion connects in just such direct fashion to the larger rebellion when we realize that Richard Lawrence—a close confederate of Bacon's, perhaps even, as contempories claimed, his tutelary genius—had sojourned in the county as a surveyor, that one of the properties he surveyed was that of John Richens, and that of all of the county's Baconians only Richens was truly punished. While the rest were pardoned or ignored, Richens was sent to the governor, tried, and banished from the colony.[35]

Aggregations such as we have been indulging in are informative but not particularly enlightening. They summarize the county Baconians as a rather ordinary group of Middlesex inhabitants, somewhat more prone to trouble than the rest. They do not tell us why these ordinary men took up arms, looted Christopher Wormeley's house, and rode off to join Ingram. To put it another way: If we imagine Richard Lawrence, in person or by letter, awakening John Richens to the Baconian cause developing in the south in 1676 and Richens, in his own hall, at church or court, even across a rail fence, haranguing his neighbors, urging action, we are still left with questions. Why did Richens listen to Lawrence? Why did these neighbors listen to Richens? And toward what end did they all act?

Lawrence himself offers a clue. Oxford-trained, a literary man, a leader in the larger events (as none of our Middlesex men were), he left an imprint on the historical record, and what we can learn of his personality might guide us to an understanding of our Baconians. Lawrence was, according to a not entirely unsympathetic contemporary, one who transformed personal frustration into political discontent. "My self have heard him," Thomas Matthew wrote, "Insinuate as if his fancy gave him prospect of finding (at one time or other,) some expedient not only to repaire his great Losse, but therewith to See those abuses rectified that the Countrey was oppress'd with." And he goes on to write, "I know him to be a thinking Man, and tho' nicely honest, affable, and without Blemish, in his Conversation and Dealings, yet did he manifest abundance of uneasiness in the Sense of his hard Usages, which might prompt him to Improve that Indian Quarrel to the Service of his Animosities."[36] Richens, too, had frustrations and "Animosities" to be served. His inheritance of four hundred acres had been under constant court challenge from Nicholas Cocke for sixteen years, while his ambitious partnership with George Hooper of 1674 was already failing in 1676. Neither Richens nor Hooper had the capital to develop the eleven hundred acres or the ability to wring capital for its development from the land itself.[37]

The lives of others among the Baconians we have identified display a similar potential for frustration. Robert Boodle and Matthew Bentley had each married a widow of a man of substantial estate and social position—in both cases the deceased had been vestrymen. Marriage gave Boodle and Bentley control of their predecessors' lands but not the social acceptance marked by office. It is not at all implausible that their leadership of Baconian troopers was a surrogate for the offices they did not hold.

For his part, Richard Blewford, a young man of twenty, native-born, could already sense an indifferent future, one not of his own making. His father had been an early entrant into the county, purchasing 217 acres in 1657 and, in partnership with another, 300 in 1663. But bad luck or a lack of ability or both had plagued him. In 1661 the county court declared the elder Blewford "a man not caapeable of an oath"; by 1676 he had lost all but ninety acres and was working those with his sons Richard and Thomas. Ultimately he would surrender all to a son-in-law who undertook to pay his debts, and he would die bankrupt, leaving his widow to the charity of others and Richard to make his way in the world as a renter.[38]

Henry Nichols, too, was native-born, his father the owner of nine hundred acres and well respected in the county. In 1676, at twenty-two, young Nichols was already landed, having inherited two hundred acres from William Pew. Henry's riding with Boodle's troop might well have been nothing more than an escapade inspired by a friend—the Blewford land was immediately adjoining Henry's two hundred acres and in the vicinity of the larger Nichols family holding. Or perhaps it was more. Had the elder Nichols already announced that Henry, the only son, would not be a singular heir, that his three sisters would share in the land? Such would eventually be the case. Did Richard Blewford's more obvious frustration come to define Henry's? Of course, we can only conjecture. The potential for Henry feeling a particular way can be demonstrated, but not the feeling itself.

Still, frustration seems a better key to Bacon's Rebellion, at least in Middlesex, than any other; and tensions seem best defined in terms of the frequency with which people faced potentially adverse resolutions to the "if" propositions of life. In the county, men and women sought to gain (or hold) for themselves and their families that comfortable constancy we sensed in imaginary conversation with the Tuggle children. But the world and their lives were inconstant. Turnings, some requiring conscious actions and decisions, others determined by situations, were myriad, and as many (perhaps more) led away from the goal as toward it. The rebellion—a chronic enigma to historians—seems in Middlesex neither a great cause nor a traumatic uprising of "losers" against "winners," oppressed against oppressors, but simply a venting of frustrations and a release of tension, precipitated by events unrelated to the county's doings and, in the end, negligible in effect.[39]

The rebellion ended in Middlesex as Captain Beverley led the governor's troopers into the county. The Baconians clattered homeward and quietly took up their lives, repairing ignored fences and preparing their seedbeds for another year's tobacco crop. They were neither hanged nor hounded for their actions. On the contrary, the remarkable thing is their immediate reacceptance into the society of the county. Captain Bentley was briefly jailed but released by Beverley. Both Boodle and Bentley were required by the county court to find securities—in effect, bail money—for their "abeareing" themselves "Peaceably and quiately towards the Kings Majestie and all his Leige People."[40] Richard Perrott, Jr., Richard Robinson, William Gordon, and Alexander Smith stood bond for the two. Perrott and Robinson were justices of the court, and all were large landholders. At the very next meeting of the justices, Captain Boodle was named a constable for the county.

Sued by Christopher Wormeley and John Lewis for trespass, the Baconians lost, but they appealed the jury verdicts to the colony's general court, finding securities among their non-Baconian neighbors for the prosecution of their appeals.[41] Minister John Shepherd, who had been harried from the county by the rebels, stood security for Baconian John Clarke.[42]

Only Richens was, at least for a while, unforgiven. Sent by the county court to the governor and banished, he was back in Middlesex by July, at which time he was arrested and imprisoned without bail, in part for violating his banishment, in part, too, for "uttering publiquely very Scandalous, and abusive Words of this Court and all the Members thereof. And giveing Such threatning Language to the Undersheriff of this County . . . Soe that he was in Dread of his life."[43] In September Richens was sent south to the governor again. There is no record of his reception, but in 1680 he was back in the county prosecuting his by then two-decades-long suit against Nicholas Cocke for the peaceable possession of his inheritance. In 1689 he would die on his land.

The trial of Christopher Wormeley's suit against the Baconians was held on Monday, September 3, 1677, a court day like any other in the early county. Middlesex had no courthouse at the time. The justices met at Richard Robinson's mid-county house, just off the main road between its junction with the church path and the cutoff to the Piankatank ferry, paying Robinson twelve hundred pounds of tobacco yearly "Howse Rent and Candle."[44] Hence it was toward Robinson's that men from all parts of the county moved that morning.

In the upper precinct, justices Richard Perrott and Abraham Weekes, neighbors sharing a neck of land on the Rappahannock between creeks bearing their names, might well have set out together, meeting John Burnham, another justice, and Thomas Haslewood at the Upper Chapel, then riding along the chapel path until it struck the main road. Haslewood was on his way to court to give an accounting of his guardianship of the orphans of William Thompson. At the road, they might have met John Jones coming down from above, on his way to submit a claim to the court for supplying extremes of the county, where contacts were not blocked by geographic features—the mile-wide Rappahannock or the dense tangle of the Dragon Swamp—neighborhoods could span the artificial political and ecclesiastic boundaries of the county and parish. Thus in the far northwest, Joneses, Humphreys, Seagers, and even Elizabeth Montague had kin and friends across the line in Essex County. In the southeastern part of the county, the narrow Piankatank was a permeable social boundary. On occasion Gloucester men and women came across to services at the Lower Chapel, even bringing their children to be baptized there. What kept the county society one was the existence of the court as an administrative and judicial heart. To it or its officers—notably sheriff and clerk—one turned for a good road (as the householders of Stingray did in 1699), for the adjudication of disputes, for the king's justice, and to establish clear title to land by recording a conveyance or will. And because these things were vital to their lives, the men and sometimes the women of the county—including the Joneses, Humphreys, and Seagers on the periphery—were regularly drawn inward, to the county's center: the courthouse on court day. We followed them in for the trial of the Baconians in 1677. There is no need to redraw the scene, only to recall it as a larger version of the churchyard on a Sabbath, as a place where once a month, year in and year out, men and to an extent women from all the various neighborhoods and precincts came together. The formal functions of the event can be discerned in the court records themselves—in the findings of juries and the various orders of the justices. But for the all-important informal function we must again resort to imagination.

Consider the plight of William Hackney, that upright moral, stern man, aghast at the behavior of his daughter Mabel yet unable to control her. We easily envision the stormy scenes in the Hackney house, perhaps a confrontation with Dodson—Hackney warning him to tend to his own wife and leave Mabel alone—and Hackney's conclusion that the only solution was to marry Mabel away from the neighborhood. But knowledge of marriageability was one of those items that traveled the circuit of neighborhood and precinct. Hackney wanted a distant husband for Mabel. How did he find one? Let us conjecture: Hackney's neighbor, John Nichols, had a daughter who had married John Bristow, who had subsequently bought land in the upper precinct and moved away. Did neighbors Hackney and Nichols talk? Did Nichols carry the story to Bristow at a chance meeting on court day? Did Bristow, at a loss for a marriageable male in his own upper precinct neighborhood, make inquiries around the Upper Chapel yard on a Sabbath and ultimately learn that Nicholas Paine was in search of a wife? The sequence of conversations is not suggested to explain how Mabel really came to marry Paine—we can never know for sure—but to conjecture how the levels of our county society might have worked to link its people as one.

erley so long as he was not put to "workeing in the ground, carryeing or fetching of railes or loggs or the like things"—found such agreements enforceable in court. Also the court would intervene on behalf of the sick and lame. Thus Henry Nichols was ordered to "speedily endeavour the cure of Mary Blake . . . otherwise this Court will sett the said Mary free." In this case, it turned out that Mary had indentured herself to Peter Harris in return for a cure; Harris had sold her service to Nichols "before the cure was perfected." "It nowe appearing . . . that the said Mary is in a very bad condicion and in no probable way for her cure," she was declared "free and at her owne disposall," and Harris was ordered to repay Nichols what he had paid for her, plus all court costs.[17]

The point in all of this is that servitude and masterdom were not dichotomous states with the servant completely powerless and the master all powerful. Jane Craddock could indeed embarrass Henry Thacker in the county. John Burdon could bargain with Robert Beverley, promising what Beverley needed to make his crop: "A good and faithful Servant." And the county court was conscientious in adjudicating between the parties in the system.

In the end, however, bargaining and adjudication were not enough. Ours was a cruel society. Ralph Wormeley could tease a snake along the road; hares and foxes were hunted by chasing the creatures into hollow trees, then setting fire to the bases; wolves caught live in pits were hauled out and killed by being "drag'd at a Horse's Tail"; in Jamestown (and later Williamsburg), crowds trooped to public executions, turning hideous death into an occasion for merriment.[18] In the countryside, cruelty could, it seems, be a way in which those in the next layer up in the society separated themselves from the servants beneath them. Events in the house of Henry and Ann Davis in January 1696 are a case in point.

The Davises were free, but little other than that fact separated their condition from that of the servants about them. In the mid-1690s, they tended rented ground in the county's upper precinct, probably along the path that led from the Upper Church to the main road. Their house, we know, had two rooms and a loft. Into it were crowded the Davises themselves; Rose Gates, a thirteen-year-old orphan placed in their charge by the county court; four-year-old Alice, Henry's illegitimate daughter by Mary Carey; John Marter, a boarder; and Marter's servants—Sarah Gambrell, probably in her late teens, and a young boy, Tom. Were we to sit down to supper in this complex household, we undoubtedly would find ourselves with that excellent but indigestible corn soup and cornbread that the traveler described as the servants' diet. For with the Davises, we are among the poorest of the poor.

It is not enough, however, to call the Davises poor and let it go at that. They were failures. Henry, like so many others, had entered the county as a servant. By 1678 he was free and renting land from the Montagues. In that year he was a witness to Mary Minor's will. In January 1679 he bought one hundred acres adjoining Nicholas Paine's land, and in June he married Ann West, whose brother Nicholas, a small planter (two hundred acres) who did a bit of tailoring on the side, lived nearby. Conceivably Ann and her brother were native-born, but we know nothing of their parentage.

The succession from servitude to renter to married landholder was a common one in early Middlesex. It was the path by which one after the other of the county's families became established. In this case, however, by virtue of bad luck, bad judgment, or bad character, the path led nowhere. By 1683 Davis was deep in debt, confessing a judgment of 1,500 pounds of sweetscented tobacco. In May 1685 he sold his land to James Ingram. A year later he was back where he had started, a renter on Montague land. His marriage was no more productive. At least two children were born to Ann—Alice in 1682 and Henry in 1686—but they (and any others) died in infancy or early childhood. As renters, the couple floated from one patch of ground to another. They were not friendless, although their friends were not always of the most savory sort. Walter White, a former servant of William Cheyney's, was in and out of their house. There are no details, but in March 1690 White and Henry were codefendants in a suit brought by Thomas Stapleton; and in November Ann and White were accused of theft by Joseph Carter. A jury found them innocent. By then the Davises were on what passed for welfare in the county. In 1691 the vestry paid Henry 150 pounds tobacco for cleaning the Upper Chapel yard—a form of poor relief. The same year the county court, taking into account Henry's "Age and Lameness," determined that he was "not able to get his Livelyhood"; hence it exempted him from levies.[19] Age and lameness did not prevent him from fathering a bastard daughter on Mary Carey, a former servant of Maurice Cocke's; Alice was baptized at the Upper Chapel in January 1692. Two other appearances before the county court deserve notice, both involving vague suits for slander. In the first (April 1692), Henry brought suit against Jacob Booseley, obtaining a judgment for 100 pounds tobacco. In the second, a year later, Booseley and his wife Elizabeth initiated but failed to prosecute a suit for slander against Ann.

As in the case of Sarah Williamson, we have only our informed imagination to guide us when we consider the various motives behind events in the Davis household in January 1696. Ann is the central figure. In her mid-thirties and childless, she was nevertheless the surrogate mother of her husband's four-year-old bastard. (Mary Carey apparently died in childbirth or shortly thereafter.) Devoid of all but the essentials of life, she could look up and down the road and see relative prosperity, including that of her brother Nicholas. Into her house came John Marter. An ex-servant, Marter had worked as a free laborer for a while and amassed the wherewithal to obtain two servants of his own, one of whom—Sarah Gambrell—was young, quite possibly pretty, and certainly had the promise of life ahead of her rather than, as with Ann, behind her.[20]

Depositions presented to the court tell the story of what happened. In Marter's words: Ann "did use at Sundred and divers times to beat and abuse the body of Sarah Gambrell but about three weekes since did unmercifully beate hir with an Iron about fourteene Inches Long and also upon the Eleaventh of this Instent did beat [her] three times . . . and . . . Sarah dyed the same day." Robert George told of going to the Davis house and meeting Sarah, who begged "for Gods sake to bring hir . . . a peece of Bread for shee was almost Starved." The next day, passing by on the road, "he heard one Cry out and he also heard the Sound of Severall Strookes." Entering he "saw Nobody but William Pryor and John Marter but heard Several Strookes Given and a great Cry in the Next Roome and at last saw Ann Davis and Sarah Gambrell Come out." Pryor testified that the day Sarah died "Ann Davis did beat the said Sarah . . . three Severall times (Vizt) first with a Switch Secondly with a Shoemakers Sterrup thirdly with a paire of flatt Leather Spanells." William Norcott told of "Mauling . . . Railes by the Road about a Quarter of mille from the house," when Sarah approached him saying "shee was Verey Cold"; Norcott "bade her Warme hir Selfe" by his fire, and while she was doing so "a little boy Tom Called hir Severall times. At Last shee went into the house and presently" Norcott "heard a great Cry as if Some body was Murthering and the next day the said Sarah Gambrell Dyed." William Provert, a servant himself, told of going by the Davis house and seeing Sarah "upon hir hands and Knees in the Snow." When he asked John Marter "to fetch hir In," Marter replyed that Provert "might Fetch hir in [himself] if he would." Returning to the house later, Provert found Sarah lying "dead upon the Chest." He asked Marter "whether hir death would not Stick upon his Conscience and the said Marter made answer that the Money or Tobaccos . . . Sarah Cost him troubled him more."[21]

Ann's cruelty toward Sarah is, of course, the striking element of this scene. It was exceptional in its result, and eventually Ann would pay the price of murder and be hanged in Jamestown.[22] But equally striking is the indifference displayed by so many. Henry Davis is a mute specter. He must have been a witness to events; perhaps by making advances toward Sarah, he even precipitated them. But he did not try to stay his wife's hand. Sarah was Marter's property—almost the entirety of his capital—and in the end he bemoaned his monetary loss. But he did not attempt to protect either his property or Sarah as an individual. Norcott shared his fire with Sarah, but he did not rush toward the house when he heard the sounds of murder. George was drawn into the house by those sounds, but he simply listened with Pryor and Marter to the cries coming from the next room. Only Provert tried to intervene, and only he spoke of Sarah's death as a matter of conscience. To Ann and Henry Davis, and to Marter, George, Pryor, and Norcott, it seems that Sarah was simply a servant. Her very wretchedness defined their own condition—poverty-stricken but free—as something of worth. They were, in a curious way, compelled by their own plight to ignore hers. Only to Provert was Sarah a person deserving of protection and, in the end, a tear.

As we move from the poorest of Middlesex's free families to the county's "middling sort," another act of violence attracts our attention. The date was Thursday, September 13, 1711; the place an ordinary at mid-county. Earlier that day the middle precinct militia had met for muster and training exercises. The exercises completed, the men had begun impromptu horse races. And from the races the flow of the crowd was toward the tavern. Benjamin Davis—no relation to Henry—was one of the crowd, drifting from muster to races to ordinary. He would be one of the protagonists in the drama to come. The other would be George Wortham, captain of the militia company.

We have already met Davis.[23] Born in the county in 1680, he had lost his mother, a Pritchard from Gloucester, as an infant and his father at age eight. With his older brother John, he was bound out to Oswald Cary. Cary died within a few years, and when his widow married Randolph Seager in July 1691, the boys were bound to him. Then Seager died (1694), and once again remarriage by the widow brought another master, the Reverend Samuel Gray, the parish minister. In 1696 brother John reached his majority and left Gray's service to take up a hundred acres left to him by his and Benjamin's father. Benjamin, at nineteen, sought his own freedom, but was compelled by the court to remain with Gray until 1702. For a few years we lose sight of him. Perhaps he worked for wages or rented. But in December 1706 he married the widow of Sarah Williamson's son Charles. With the marriage, Benjamin gained a two-year-old stepson, land to work for himself (Williamson's hundred acres), and a black slave couple and their infant boy. The next year he served as a grand juror, to our knowledge his first public service. Regular jury duty followed, and in December 1708 he was named by the county court a surveyor of highways, being charged with the care of the roads "from Turkes Ferry [on the Piankatank] to the Courthouse" and on to the Middle Church.[24]

Marriage and public service were the high points of Davis's life. Then the tide turned against him. One of the blacks—the female—died. Rather than himself and two blacks to do the work of the plantation, Davis perforce made do with himself and one. At the same time, he had more mouths to feed. To his wife, stepson, and the young black—not yet old enough to work—were added two daughters born in 1707 and 1709. Debts piled up, primarily to William Churchill, from whom Davis obtained the necessities he could not produce himself and to whom he paid over his tobacco. The crop never covered the cost of purchases. The final accounting would come after Davis's death. Charles Williamson's estate, which Davis had come to control by marriage, had amounted to the hundred acres and personal property valued at 117*li* current money of Virginia. Following Davis's death, his debts were such that they could only be met by the sale at public auction not only of his own personal possessions, but also of those properly belonging to his wife and Williamson's son, including the two remaining blacks. When the tally was balanced, the widow was left with the land and 5*li*.

Benjamin Davis, a freeholder and minor officeholder, was a cut above Henry Davis, albeit failing in the economic race. For his part, George Wortham was a cut above Benjamin. Wortham, too, was Middlesex-born (1673) and he was the third of four sons and ultimately the only survivor of the eight children of John and Mary Wortham. Father John had moved into what would become the the middle precinct in 1657, taking up four hundred acres on the Piankatank side of the main road just below the cutoff to the Dragon crossing. A lay reader at Christ Church, he was called upon frequently for jury duty, as an appraiser of estates, and to serve as constable. In 1684 he was co-opted onto the vestry. That same year he took a seat among the justices of the county court. Young George came into his father's land gradually. Following John's death in 1693, George took possession of the undeveloped land away from the road, building his house there while a stepmother lived on in the original "manor Plantation" of one hundred acres. When she died (by November 1695), George took over the old house, repaired and refitted it as a new courthouse, and leased it, along with a prison that he built nearby, to the county for a ten-year term, collecting five thousand pounds of tobacco. By then he was married and a father; before his death, he would marry twice and father eleven children in all. His first public service had followed closely upon his father's death and proceeded apace: petit jury duty from 1693 onward, appraising estates from 1695, surveyor of highways in 1696, constable in 1701, a jury foreman for the first time in 1703, a seat among the justices in 1704, sheriff of the county in 1708. His personal fortune seems to have proceeded apace as well. In 1699 he attempted to add to his land a thirty-three-acre tract that would have given him frontage on the Piankatank. At the auction of Benjamin Davis's goods, Wortham would purchase the young black boy to add to his own stock of labor.

Davis and Wortham, two men of the county, were neighbors—their houses were no more than a mile and a half apart. Their argument that Thursday in 1711 began in mid-afternoon. Wortham, as captain of the company, exercised his troopers and then, done with the muster, "went to running of Races."[25] The captain was among the winners and bought cider for the men, who urged him "to stay and drink part with them." It was inevitably a bluff, hearty occasion in the yard in front of the ordinary. At one point, Wortham drew Davis aside. Undoubtedly the captain knew of Davis's worsening finances. He offered Benjamin the position of overseer on his own plantation. We do not know what Davis replied, only that the two had "some discourse" about the matter. The general talk drifted to the cause célèbre of the neighborhood at the moment: William Matthews, then languishing in the nearby jail. Matthews had some years before been an ordinary keeper, but had fallen into debt and lost his license. Since then he had been in and out of trouble, the most recent involving a suit with Wortham over a protested bill, Wortham claiming a debt of eight pounds, seven shillings and sixpence. Only a few days earlier, Wortham had obtained an attachment of a mare belonging to Matthews, had seized the mare, and had placed it with his own animals. Matthews had stolen it back again and had been committed to the jail by Justice Christopher Robinson to await trial for theft.

Had Matthews really "Stole his Mare or no?" one of the troopers now asked Wortham.

Indeed he had, George replied.

No! Davis interjected. Matthews was "an honest man and took his [own] Mare where he Could find her." He—Wortham—"had done the thing that was unfaire for that he had attached a mans Mare that he had noe more right to then himselfe."

Once started, argument escalated.

"Matthews did what any honest man would do and what I would have done myself!"

"Ah, Davis, do not trouble your head about it. It is no concern of yours. Be pacifyed!"

"Nay, not for a rogue and knave like yourself!"

Gradually the onlookers pushed between the participants, separating them. Richard Paffit drew Wortham into the ordinary itself to "Smoake a pipe and drink a pot and then they should be free of Davis' noise." But after a while, Davis and some others followed. Sitting apart from Wortham and Paffit, Davis continued ranting.

"If I had but four men of my own mind I would break the prison door open and lett him out."

When he raised no response from his prey, Davis rose, crossed the room, and demanded the prison key. Somehow Wortham (or the others) managed to quiet Davis and return him to his seat. It was only for a moment.

"Who was such a blockhead to put that man there?" Davis asked the room in general. Rising, he approached Wortham again. "Was it such a pupey as you, or do you know who?"

"Mr. Christopher Robinson committed him."

"Then Mr. Christopher Robinson is a blockhead and a pupey, and all the Justices are fooles and do not know their Duty."

Wortham was by this time obviously angered. He "bid [Davis] hold his tongue." When Davis persisted, Wortham, too, resorted to epithets. Here the record fails us. The witnesses conveniently forgot what Wortham said. "Captain Wortham Said Some word (which this deponent Saith he hath forgott) which disturbed Benjamin Davis who repeated it Severall times after. Whereupon Captain Wortham said 'Sure, Benjamin, it is not Come to that, that I must be afraid to Speak for you?' and with that bid him hold his tongue and talk noe more of it." The argument continued, but on a level so personal as to defy our understanding. Davis, said Wortham, was too much like his Gloucester Uncle Pritchard. (All we know of Pritchard is that he owed Davis a cow and calf but never delivered them.)[26]

"If I am like my Uncle Pritchard I will stand by my Uncle Pritchard till I dye."

Wortham had touched a sensitive area! He raised his cane as if to hold Davis away. Davis struck at the cane with his sheathed sword, then drew the sword from its scabbard and cut at the cane again. Wortham backed away toward and through the open door and into the yard, defending himself with the cane until it was finally swept from his hand, then drawing his own sword and offering it toward his attacker.

"Stand off, Davis. I have a sword as well."

Witness William Cheshire—he would subsequently marry Davis's widow—tells the rest of it: "Davis Still endeavouring to get a blow at [Wortham] followed him very close up and at last turned from him and came towards me . . . saying in a crying tone that he was a dead man and [he] opening his Shirt to look at Something I saw blood." Two hours later Davis died. He had run himself upon Wortham's outstretched sword.[27]

The "duel" was certainly a drunken brawl. One of the witnesses would later confess that he could not "be positive in [his testimony] because he was Something in drink." Indeed, the hard cider had been running for at least three hours! But the duel is also a window through which we glimpse personalities and tensions in the middle layer of Middlesex's free society, just as the murder of Sarah Gambrell offers us a glimpse of the lowest level. At the root of the duel was status. Benjamin was in danger of losing the status he had, so much so, it seems, as to be affronted by the offer of employment as an overseer. He lashed out at Wortham (who had made the offer) in behalf of a man in prison who could just as easily have been himself.

Status is the operative word here. By it we mean very simply an individual's position in some sort of normative hierarchy that in sum makes up the society within which one lives. We take the definition from our sister disciplines, sociology and anthropology. But to put the point in down-to-earth (albeit pristine and exaggerated) terms: If two people met in a given situation in Middlesex, the behavior of each toward the other would inevitably be guided by each one's individual assessment of his or her own status relative to the status of the other. If the situation was the classic one of meeting across two ends of a narrow footbridge, each would look for particular attributes in the other, scale those attributes according to a set of rules that both understood, and arrive at the same decision as to who was to precede whom. Sociologists have isolated those attributes that might be used in this very general social process: sex, age, wealth and its accoutrements (a fine house, fine clothes, in brief, appearances), political authority, ethnicity, education, occupation, and family connection or kinship.[28] But which did our Middlesex people actually use? And weighted how? In some societies—those marked by what is called "status consistency"—one party need only spy signs of greater wealth at the other end of the footbridge in order to assume greater power, higher family connections, better education, and a more prestigious occupation, and hence give way. In others—marked by "status inconsistency"—an individual might be from a socially esteemed family yet be politically powerless or be highly educated yet be penniless; and status claims on the one hand and deference on the other will vary according to the particulars of the situation. Historians too often have assumed the former prevailed in the early Chesapeake, writing of "the integration of economic wealth, social status, and political power."[29] But did it?

The most important imprimatur of status among the men of Middlesex that we have is the degree to which they served the public.[30] Vestry and county court were to all intents and purposes self-selected boards. The vestry was openly so. When one vestryman died, the remainder selected a successor, and appointment was for life. The members of the county court were, technically, commissioned by the governor of the colony, as was the sheriff. The justices served at the gubernatorial pleasure—he could commission others in their places; the sheriff served a one-year term. Yet almost invariably justices, once appointed, served for life or until they themselves stepped down, and the governor chose new justices upon the nomination of sitting justices. The sheriff's office, for the most part, rotated among the justices. With the exception of burgesses elected by the freeholders to represent the county in the colony's legislature,[31] all other public service was performed by individuals selected in one way or another by members of the vestry and court. And there were many tasks to be done, from service on petit juries (which determined the facts at issue before the court) and processioning and appraising estates, through grand jury duty, clerking, seeing to the condition of the roads (surveyors of highways), and carrying out the diverse duties assigned to the constables and to an undersheriff, to the work of the justices and vestrymen themselves. In the single year 1700, for example, eighty-four individuals—slightly more than a third of the number of heads-of-family then residing in the county—were active in 175 county and parish posts.[32] The intention of those making the selections was to get the public's business done as expeditiously as possible; hence, it can be argued, they selected those who were known to have the skills, sagaciousness, trustworthiness, and stature needed for the work—in other words, those who had particular status (or standing) in the society of the community.

In the lives that we have already touched upon, there are important clues to this selection process, hence to status. Henry Davis died the year after the murder of Sarah Gambrell, still a renter. What possessions he had seem to have been silently taken up by his then-landlord and principal creditor, Henry Perrott. No inventory remains of Davis's estate, and Perrott was awarded 150 pounds of tobacco by the county court for burying him in a pauper's grave. But we have a sense of what Davis might have owned from the inventory of John Bodgam who, like Davis, had begun life in the Chesapeake as a servant and ended it (in 1701) as a renter: a cow and calf and two steers; in one room of his house, a bed and some blankets; in the other, another bed, a table, a chest—all described as "olde"—an iron pot, a frying pan, some pewter dishes, two "milk trays," and two pails. In all, Bodgam's possessions were worth 1,362 pounds of tobacco, or roughly nine pounds, ten shillings current money.[33] With the exception of Davis's being paid by the parish to clean the Upper Chapel yard—a form of welfare, as we have said—neither Davis nor Bodgam was ever charged with a public task.

Recall the lives of Benjamin Davis and the two Worthams. Davis was charged with no public service to our knowledge until after his marriage, that is to say, until he was a settled householder in control of land. George Wortham began his public career only after the death of his father, when he came into land of his own. Definite career paths are suggested. Both Worthams seem to have risen through an ascending hierarchy of positions. John Wortham served successively as juror, appraiser, and constable before being selected for the vestry and court. George Wortham served, in order, as juror, appraiser, surveyor of highways, constable, and justice. Davis was a constable only after he had served as a grand and petit juror. The Worthams, finally, were almost constantly employed in one office or another. Davis was last called upon in 1708, the point at which we judge his fortunes turned for the worse.

What is indicated in a few cases is confirmed when we consider many. The possession of land and wealth were clearly vital elements in the selection process. Those without land—itinerant tenants and sharecroppers, hired laborers—were virtually excluded from public tasks. Until the turn of the century, colony statute was vague on the point of who could serve the public. Aliens, atheists, Catholics, Jews, felons, those residing in the county less than three years, and the immoral in general were barred from public service.[34] But even before colony law restricted jury duty and the like to "freeholders," few who did not own or hold long-term leases to property were selected in Middlesex.[35] Among the eighty-four men active in 1700, for example, only three came from this bottommost level of free society, one serving as a sexton, two as appraisers.

But the relationship of land and wealth to public service involved more than simply the exclusion of the landless. When we tabulate the careers of all those doing the public's work in the county, we discern—although imperfectly—the ordering of positions suggested by the careers of Davis and Wortham. County men generally began their public service as petit jurors and appraisers and rose, if they rose at all, from there. When we break down the highest office achieved into levels and compute for each level the median number of acres controlled by incumbents and the median appraised value of their personal property, a clear correlation emerges. Those achieving positions as justices, vestrymen, sheriffs, churchwardens, coroners, and burgesses—the highest level offices—controlled at the high point of their lives an average of 828 acres and left estates valued on average at 615*li* current. Those achieving only the lowest level offices controlled on average 180 acres and left estates appraised at 85*li*.

But there is still more to this matter of public office (and status). The ranges of values in our analysis suggest as much. For there were men who controlled upward of one thousand acres and left estates of six hundred pounds and more who never rose in public service beyond the lowest level, and men of one hundred or two hundred acres and estates to match who rose to the highest. Brief sketches of Middlesex families—some of which we have met in passing—and the offices held by their members are equally suggestive.

The Seagers. We noticed the first Seager—Oliver—when we looked at the initial entry into the county. Illiterate, probably an ex-servant, he acquired land at the cliffs in the uppermost part of the county in 1650. At his death in 1659, he left a widow, Eleanor, and three children. Eleanor remarried within the year, outlived her second husband, Humphrey Owen, then married widower Humphrey Jones, a sequence of marriages that provided the one Seager child to survive, Oliver's son Randolph, with an elaborate network of step-relationships, a network that was cemented in 1679 when he married his stepsister, Mary Jones. That same year Randolph seems to have taken control of his father's land and begun his public service, serving frequently as a juror, estate appraiser, constable, and surveyor of highways. In 1690 he was named to the vestry. Thereafter—but never before—he was referred to as "Mister Seager." By 1692 he was a justice of the peace, sitting on the county court. At his death, he was in control of at least four properties—his father's in his own right; that of his second wife, Ann (Jackson) Cary; and two held in trust for the children of his stepfather Jones. His personal estate in money and tobacco was worth, in 1694, 660*li* current.

Early deaths like Randolph Seager's—he was only in his mid-thirties—and the subsequent scattering of property and children among executors and guardians were common

26th Arkansas Infantry Regiment

Organized at Camp White Sulphur Springs near Pine Bluff from nine companies of "Morgan's Battalion" between April and July of 1862 as the "3rd Trans-Mississippi Infantry Regiment", a tenth company was added to fill out to regimental strength and the unit renamed as the 26th Arkansas Infantry Regiment on its transfer to Confederate service on July 23, 1862 under the command of Colonel Asa S. Morgan.

Colonel Morgan was a veteran officer who had raised and commanded Company A of Fagan's 1st Arkansas Infantry Regiment in 1861, and when the 1st Arkansas was reorganized and consolidated with the 15th Arkansas after the battle of Shiloh, Morgan returned to Arkansas to raise another company of infantry at El Dorado, and Morgan was appointed by Maj. Gen. T.C. Hindman to command the new battalion and ultimately the regiment to which his company was assigned at Camp White Sulphur Springs.

In addition to Colonel Morgan, the original Field Officers were Lt. Col. Fountain P. Yell and Major A.S. Greenwood. Company commanders were: Co. A, from Monticello and Drew county; Cpt. Iverson L. Brooks; Co. B, from Monticello, Capt. Samuel Gibson; Co. C, from Pine Bluff, Cpt. W.S. Otey; Co. D, from Bradley, Jefferson, and Pulaski counties, Cpt. A.H. Halliday; Co. E, from Selma in Drew county, Cpt J.R. Stanley; Co. F, from Tulip in Dallas county, Cpt Jesse Bland; Co. G, from Lewisville and Little Rock Cpt. J.S. Brooks; Co. H, from Brownsville, Cpt. J.W. May; Co. I, from DeWitt and Dardanelle; Cpt. J.R. Maxwell; and Co. K, from Pine Bluff, Cpt. W.A. Bull.

The regiment trained for a time at Camp Pike (near present-day Camp Robinson, near North Little Rock) and spent some time at Fort Hindman, the artillery position built at Arkansas Post to protect the south end of the Arkansas River. They then marched north to Van Buren, where they were assigned (along with the 28th, 30th, and 32nd Arkansas) to form a brigade under Colonel Dandridge McRae in Shoup's Division in MG Thomas Hindman's 1st Corps of the Army of the Trans-Mississippi. McRae's Brigade fought in the battle of Prairie Grove on December 7-8, 1862. Regimental strength of the 26th Arkansas at Prairie Grove was 412 rifles.

Following the Battle of Prairie Grove, the 26th Arkansas was assigned to garrison Fort Smith along with a company from Monroe's 1st Arkansas Cavalry and Lane's company of Texas partisan rangers. In addition to garrisoning this frontier post, their responsibilities including providing security and support for the post hospital, containing approximately 1,500 wounded and sick from the Prairie Grove campaign, who were described as being in "wretched condition". During this time the regiment was allowed to hold re-election of officers under the Confederate Conscription Act of 1862, and Colonel Morgan withdrew his name from consideration for reelection. Lt. Col. Fountain Pitts Yell was then elected as colonel, with Iverson L. Brooks as the lieutenant colonel and Captain Sam Gibson as major. (Colonel Morgan requested and was reassigned to the Department staff as inspector of field transportation, in which post he served until the end of the war.) The 26th remained at Fort Smith through about September, 1863, when the Confederate forces under General Cabell were forced to evacuate the area following their defeat at Devil's Backbone.

Following the evacuation of Fort Smith, the 26th was reassigned to its old brigade, now under the command of Lucian Gause and composed of the 26th, 32nd, and 36th Arkansas regiments. Gause's Brigade spent the winter of 1863 camped southwest of Little Rock. Morale was sinking, not only because of the loss of Little Rock, but because many of the 26th's soldiers' families were destitute and starving. Many soldiers were granted furlough, or simply took "French leave" to go the short distance home to provide for their families that summer and fall, subject to recall for the upcoming campaign. Upon the launch of the Federal's campaign up the Red River, seizing Alexandria, Louisiana and moving on Natchitoches and Shreveport, General Churchill's Arkansas Infantry Division and Gause's Brigade was sent south to Shreveport, Louisiana in early March, 1864 to assist General Kirby Smith's army in countering Union General Nathaniel Banks' advance along the Red River. En route to Louisiana, the regiment was engaged in skirmishes with Union Colonel Powell Clayton's cavalry at Mount Elba and Longview, Arkansas, on March 30 where Clayton managed to route the Confederate brigade under General Tom Dockery, and capture his trains at Longview. Churchill's brigade reached Keatchie, Louisiana in time to support Richard Taylor's main force who routed Banks' army in the battle of Mansfield (Sabine Crossroads) on April 8, 1864. The next day, the Confederate forces united to attack the Union rear guard at Pleasant Hill on the afternoon of April 9. The Confederates had endured a long forced march from south central Arkansas to Mansfield, and another of ten hours to Pleasant Hill that day with only two hours' rest. The Union troops held a formidable position, and although the Arkansans and Missourians fought valiantly, they were repulsed and retreated six miles to the nearest water. Lt. Col. Yell was killed in the 26th's charge on the Union works at Pleasant Hill, and Lt. Col. Brooks succeeded to command of the regiment. After the battle of Pleasant Hill, Churchill's Division slung their knapsacks for a hasty return with General Kirby Smith back to Arkansas to assist General Price in dealing with the other half of the Red River campaign, Union General Frederick Steele's Camden Expedition moving southwest from Little Rock. The Division and Gause's Brigade arrived just in time to join the pursuit of Steele's army as it retreated from Camden, and join in the attack on Steele as he tried to cross the Saline River at Jenkins' Ferry on April 30, 1864. After an all-night march through a rainstorm and ankle-deep mud, Gause's Brigade fell upon the federal rear guard and drove them for more than a mile, until the brigade on their flank began to give way. Reinforced by Tappan's Brigade, and personally led by General Churchill, the Confederate line rallied and drove the federals from the field.

Gause's Brigade and the 26th Arkansas returned to the vicinity of Camden following Jenkins' Ferry, and saw no substantial combat for the remainder of the war. Transferred to BG J. S. Roane's Brigade, Churchill's Arkansas Division, in September, 1864. The regiment ultimately surrendered with Kirby Smith's army on May 26, 1865.

Officers: Col. Asa S. Morgan. Field Officers: Lt. Col. (later Col.) Iverson Lea Brooks; Major Samuel Gibson; Maj. (later Lt. Col.) James P. Stanley; Lt. Col. John C. Wright; Maj. (later Lt. Col. and Col.) Fountain P. Yell; Maj. A.S. Greenwood

THOSE who are regardless of the history of our ancestors and their posterity -- who do not look upon themselves as a link connecting the past with the future in the transmission of life from their ancestors to their posterity, do not perform their duty to the world.
TO be faithful to ourselves, we must keep our ancestors and our posterity within reach and grasp of our thoughts and affections, living in the memory and retrospect of the past - and hoping with affection and care for those who are to come after us. We are true to ourselves only when we act with becoming pride for the blood we inherit and which we are to transmit to those who shall fill our places.

- ANON -

THE DAVIS FAMILY

The Davis family came from Wales first to North Carolina and then to Georgia. A Davis family of New England, with branches in New York, claim the Davises of Georgia were an off-shoot, migrating south during the 18th Century.

Evan and John Davis, sons of William Davis, a Revolutionary Captian of Volunteer in 1775/76 in St. David Parish, SC (Old Cherawes - Gregg p.245) and Susan Mary Durham of Marian Co., SC, migrated through Ky, settling in Columbia Co., Ga. Another member of this family remained in Ky, giving the South one of the greatest statesmen that America has ever had -- Jefferson Davis. To really appreciate his contribution to the country, one must read two volumes by Hudson Strode - "Jefferson Davis, American Patriot (1808-1861)" and "Jefferson Davis, Tragic Hero (1861-1889)".

Evan Davis b 1/Oct/1779 m Sarah Holliman in 25/Jul/1802. Their first son died in infancy. On 21/Jun/1804, Aaron Holliman Davis was born with 12 more children following in the next 25 yrs.

Among loose legal papers found in Wilkes Co., Ga a marriage license was found - issued in Oglethrope Co on 6/July/1825 to Aaron Davis and Martha Sneed Colley (she was propably the grand-daughter of the John W. Colley who came into Georgia from Virginia with some of the earliest pioneers) and performed 7/July/1825 by Malachi Reeves, VDM. Three ch were born: Sarah H. 20/May/1826 (m. Charles L. Walker) - James Evan 12/Nov/1827 - John Wesley 4/May/1829. Aaron Holliman died 9/May/1830.

Martha Davis married Daniel Patterson McEachern about 1838/39 and they moved their family westward. Three other children were born: William Newell McEachern 12/Aug/1840 - Martha Ellen 1/Aug/1843 - Effie A. 20/Jul/1845.

About 1859, a wagon train of Georgians,-McEarchens, Davis', H.D.Phillips, N.D.Fombys and maybe others, with their furniture, slaves and livestock crossed the river at Natches, Ms and after some thirty days of travel, settled in the community of Atlanta, Arkansas.

James Evan and Mary Rebecca Morgan Davis (they had married in Troup Co.,Ga ca 1850)had these children: John Wesley and Aaron Henry were born and died July/1851 - Martha Gregory b 24/Dec/1853 m. Charles M. Fomby - Henry Philips b 4/Feb/1856 - Ella Cornelia b 5/Aug/1858 m. Samuel C. Doss - Effie Morgan b 14/Oct/1862 m. Wm. P. Perry - Ada Cabiness b 15/Feb/1865 m. Some time shortly following the end of the war between the States, several of the families here moved to White County - some are buried there - the Israel "Pick" Davis', the Daniel McEacherns, the Asbury Hooks, the Benjamin Byrds. Times were quite difficult and hard for everyone during these years and many searched for a better life.

Our gratitude is given to the several members of this family who shared their information with us -- Mary Davis Wooward Lewis (has counted her line to the twelfth generation from Wales to Arkansas!) has meant so much to Columbia Co. history with her generosity with time, knowledge and home! She descends through James Evan - Joseph L. Davis.

Thanks to Ola Davis (her husband descends through William C. Davis) and to Norma Faulkner (descends through Israel - Susan Davis Watson) who are all charter members of SoWeAr.

SECTION 1

WILLIAM BARBEE OF MIDDLESEX COUNTY, VIRGINIA
Born 16___, and died testate, in Middlesex 1720

All that we know of WILLIAM BARBEE and his two wives is taken from the Parish Register and Vestry Book of Christ Church, Middlesex County, from his Will, and five land deeds in Middlesex County.

THE PARISH REGISTER OF CHRIST CHURCH, MIDDLESEX COUNTY, VIRGINIA. Compiled by the Virginia Society of the Colonial Dames of America, and printed 1897, in Richmond, Virginia, by Wm. Ellis Jones.

191 has a puzzling incomplete entry. This page is of deaths in 1735-1736. There is a piece torn from the left hand side of the page, and several entries have only the right hand side and the line left. This one says only . . . . . (George Barbee) . . . . . See pp. 6 & 7.
(*The entries given as Barber and Barley are the only ones spelled that way in the entire REGISTER. We assume that they are misreadings for Barbee and Barbey. (R.H.S.)

WILLIAM'S LAND HOLDINGS - see Middlesex County, Va., App. A. pg. 153. (K.C.S. In the VESTRY BOOK OF CHRIST CHURCH PARISH, compiled by C. G. Chamberlayne, pp. 148 & 166, we find: "Ordered That WM BARBEE and George Hardin Procession . . . every mans . . land . . Lower End of this County. . . ." This was in 1715 & 1719. See App. A, pg. 156a.)

WILLIAM BARBEE'S death is not recorded in the Register, nor the deaths of his two wives. Obviously the REGISTER is far from complete.
WILLIAM BARBEE died in Middlesex between Jan. 5, 1720 and Feb. 5, 1720 when his will was proved in Court by Hugh Roach and Edward Blackbourne.

In the name of God Amen: The fifth day of January Anno Domo 1720 - I, William Barbee of the County of Middlesex being ill and weak in body, but of sound mind and composing mind and memory do make and publish and declare this my last will and testament in manner and form following - (that is to say) first I commend my immortal soul into the hands of Almighty God, and my body to the earth to be decently buried in such manner as my executors hereafter named shall think convenient -

THE CHILDREN OF WILLIAM BARBEE (16-- 1720)

Since all the known North Carolina descendants of William Barbee of Middlesex County, Virginia, except the descendants of his daughter, ANN MORGAN, come through his son, JOHN BARBEE, who married Ann Miller, we will now give the small bit of information we have about the other children of WILLIAM, and take up JOHN later. (pg. 8)

HANNAH BARBEE (ANN) baptised April 12, 1685, married John Morgan. His will, abstracted below, shows that ANN was living in 1731, and that they had a daughter ROSAMOND, and 8 sons, BARBEE, EDWARD, JAMES, JOHN, JOSEPH, MARK, NATHAN and WILLIAM MORGAN.

ESSEX COUNTY, VIRGINIA, WILLS #5, 1730-1735, pp. 227-229.

Will of JOHN MORGIN of Essex County, Planter sick and weak of body . . . the 6th day of October 1731. . . .
I lend to my dearly beloved wife ANN MORGIN all that tract or parcel of land whereon I now live with the houses and appurtenances thereto belonging together with the plantation I purchased from John Morris during her natural life.
He lends her the use of five slaves, cattle, household goods, etc. if she does not marry ' or change her condition.' If she marries she is to have the thirds which the law allows her.

To daughter Rosamond, a slave girl.
To son Nathan Morgin, a negro girl.
To son Joseph Morgin, a negro boy.
To son John Morgin, one shilling.
To son William Morgin, 'plantation whereon I now live' after wife's death.
To son Edward Morgin, 'plantation I purchased of John Morris.'

After wife's death the five negroes left to her 'to be equally divided among my sons William, Edward, Mark, James & Barbee.'
After wife's death other property 'to be equally divided between my sons William, Edward, Mark, James, Barbee, Nathan, Joseph and my daughter Rosamond.'
Sole Executrix, wife. Signed; JOHN MORGIN
Witnesses: John Davis
Robert (x) Simpson ?
Thomas (x) Houston
Mark Deekes ?
The will was proved by Thomas Houston at Court held at Tappahannock on the 19th day of March 1733. Proved by Robert Simpson ? 16th April 1733.

JOHN and MARK MORGAN, sons of John and Ann above, came to Orange County, North Carolina. They had many land grants in what is present-day Orange and Chatham. Both JOHN and MARK MORGAN lived near their cousin WILLIAM BARBEE (son of JOHN and ANN (MILLER) BARBEE). They left many descendants, but we have not attempted to follow them. A few are given in the PATTERSON HISTORY mentioned elsewhere in this book.

? QUERY ?

Was MARY, wife of JOSEPH BARBEE, a FEARN of Middlesex County, Virginia? Some notes by Ruth H. Shields, presented as suggestions, only!

My ancestor William Rhodes who died (testate) in 1804 in Orange County, N.C., was a son of William and Hannah (Miller) Rhodes of Middlesex County, Va. Several generations of his family are given in the PARISH REGISTER. William Sr. died testate in Orange Co., Va. in 1744. His will names his wife Hannah and sons William, Christopher, John, Hezekiah and Benjamin. He had no daughters. All five of these sons were very early settlers in Orange County, N.C.

Christopher Rhodes' wife was Judith. She signed a deed in Orange 9 Dec 1755. This deed was for 220 acres sold to Joseph Barbee. Christopher Rhodes was born 25 Nov 1730. We do not know when Joseph Barbee was born, but as he was the last-named son in his mother's will, except for Francis, it is likely that he was one of her youngest children. Her oldest child was born in 1711. There was probably very little difference in the ages of Chris Rhodes and Joseph Barbee.

Chris Rhodes' uncle John Rhodes (b 12 Feb 1693) married 1st Ann Payne, and 2nd, in 1745, Mrs. Ann Fearn, widow of John.

in the PARISH REGISTER of Middlesex we find two sisters who may possibly be the Judith and Mary above.

John Fearn & Ann Machen married 20 Feb 1720	page 163
John Fearn died 1 May 1743	" 194
Mary daughter of John & Anne Fearn born 20 Feb 1721	" 109
Judith daughter of John & Anne Fearn born 30 Dec 1730	" 130

Were the 5 slaves which Joseph Barbee and Christopher Rhodes listed jointly in Orange County, N.C. in 1753, legacies from John Fearn's estate? I have not attempted any research about this estate.

Christopher and Joseph were related through the MILLER family, but the exact degree of relationship has not been established.

*before names indicates that I have found them either in the PARISH REGISTER, or in some other Middlesex County Record

WILLIAM BARBER is apparently a misreading or miswriting of BARBEE. There does not seem to be a William Barber in this section of Middlesex County at this time that I can find.

Look at the names close to WILLIAM BARBER (BARBEE):

WILLIAM BEAMONT, who I think was a brother of ELIZABETH, WILLIAM BARBEE'S wife.
JOHN SUTTON, who I think was the father of Christopher Sutton (S-3-5)
PATRICK MILLER, who I think was either the father or brother of JOHN MILLER
JOHN'S daughter, ANN, married JOHN BARBEE (S-9-1)
JOHN'S daughter, HANNAH, married WILLIAM RHODES
EZEKIAH RHODES, who was the father of WILLIAM RHODES
JOHN SANDFORD, who named "4 friends" (S-3-1)
On page S-3-8:
WILLIAM CHURCHILL, on 2 of WILLIAM BARBEE'S deeds (S-3-2, S-3-6, S-3-13, S-3-16)
HENRY THACKER, grandfather of Edwin Thacker, one of "4 friends" (S-3-1)
THOMAS TOWNSEND, on Inventory of William Beamont (S-3-6)
MR. CHRISTOPHER WORMELEY & CAPT. WALTER WHITTAKER on BARBEE deed of 1690, S-3-1.
COLL. JOHN ARMISTEAD (son of William Armistead, emigrant) lived in Gloucester Co. (d 1697) bought lands in Middlesex (MASON, p 120) in 1678 & 1697.
FRANCIS DODSON (DOBSON) to whom our WILLIAM BARBEE sold land in 1690, S-3-6.
DUDLEYS, from whom WILLIAM BARBEE bought land (see APP. A, STUDY)
JAMES PATE, who was adjacent to land of WILLIAM BARBEE, S-0-14.
No doubt but that this is our WILLIAM BARBEE.

Five of these last names are found on the Smith-Taliaferro grant, see S-0-14.

VIRGINIA QUIT RENT ROLLS - 1704

There are too many of these to copy entirely, but here are are some I think we will find interesting in relationship to other things:

Coll. Corbin	2260	George Wortham	400
Esqr. Wormeley Estate	5200	Christ(o) Robinson	4000
Wm. Churchill	1950	Paul Thilman (clerk)	300
Henry Perrott	1100	Edwin Thacker, Thacker Estate	2500
Rich(d) Kemp	1100	Thomas Dudley	200
Joseph Mitcham	75	Tho. Stiff	100
Henry Thacker	1875	Roger Jones	100
Harry Beverley	1000	Robert Blackley	100

this group listed together:

Widd. Hackney	300	+Francis Dobson	150
Wm. Kilbee	600	James Dudley	200
Ezekiah Rhodes	300	Capt Berkley	750
John Handiford (Sandiford?)	100	Wm. Sutton	150
John Miller	200	Sr. Wm. Skipwith	350
Wm Scarborow	200	Coll. Kemp	900
Wm Herne	75	Wm. Barbee	150
Robt. Dudley	300	*Wm Wallis	300
Widd Mason	100	Adam Curtis	200
Peter Chilton	100	Capt Wm. Armistead	2325

Notice Sr. Wm. Skipwith & Coll. Kemp are between Dobson & BARBEE.
William Beamont (Beaumont) not listed. He died 1700. See pages S-3-1, S-3-6, SUPPLEMENT, for references to the Inventory.
*Is William Wallis living next to WILLIAM BARBEE? See reference S-3-1.
Capt. Wm. Armistead is probably the William Armistead of Eastmore River in Gloucester (d 1711) and was son of John Armistead in the MILITARY CENSUS.

BARNES.—The subject of this tribute, ister Lydia E. Barnes, was born March 30th, 1813, in Buncomb county, North Carolina. While young her parents moved to Tennessee. There, on the 20th day of June, 1832, she was united in marriage with Samuel N. Barnes. Soon thereafter the young couple came to Arkansas, settling in Saline county. From there they moved to Union county in 1865. They came to Miller county in 1871. I see from the Church register Bro. Barnes died triumphantly Nov. 8th, 1882, and on the 31st day of Dec., 1884, just as the old year was dying away, Grandma Barnes, as she was called, passed away from earth to her home in heaven. She was one of the noble women of earth, always exemplifying the religion she professed by her daily walk. She delighted to administer to the wants of the needy, and was always mindful of the wants of the Church. She was confined to her bed for about five months, and though she suffered much she bore it with humble Christian resignation to the will of God. I frequently visited her during her illness and always found her calmly waiting for the summons. She gave every evidence of her acceptance of God through our Lord Jesus Christ, and just before she expired she was exulting in a Saviour's love. Oh, what a trophy for the religion of the Bible! She had been waging the Christian warfare for a full half century and had never been defeated, but always victorious; whether living or dying, rejoicing in a Saviour's love. Grandma was the mother of seven children, two of whom had preceded her to the grave. Five are still living and faithfully following in the footprints of their sainted mother. Be faithful, children. A few more conflicts and the victory will be yours, and you be permitted to enter through the gates into the city of our God on the other shore. Oh, what a reunion will be on the river!

JOHN B. THOMAS.

OGBERN.—Mrs. Virginia Stella Ogbern was born December 4, 1872, in Miller county, Arkansas, and was married to Mr. L. S. Ogbern July 10, 1890. She joined the M. E. Church, South, at the age of 13 years, and lived a devoted Christian life until her death, which took place September 4 1900, in Caddo parish, Louisiana. She left a husband, five little boy children and many friends and relatives to mourn the loss of her. She has passed from this world, but her Christian influence still lives. Her illness lasted eight days, during which time she was perfectly rational and was submissive to God's will. She talked to her friends and relatives some time before she died, and received faithful promises from many of them. She left this world shouting and praising God. Once, while talking to her mother and sister, she said: "Heaven is just over there." So, beloved, don't mourn as those who have no hope in the great beyond.

M. K. Rogers, P. C.

DAVIS.—Franklin Anderson Davis was born April 28, 1881, in Miller county, Arkansas, and quietly fell asleep in Jesus, October 18, 1902. His disease was fever and nervous prostration, and he suffered greatly for three weeks, but bore his suffering patiently. Frank was a good boy, strictly moral, but never accepted Christ as his Saviour until two weeks before his death; he told his mother that he was glad he did not die in the summer for I was a bad boy then, but I am ready now to meet the Lord, and eight days before his death he was received into the M. E. Church, South, by his pastor, W. W. Mills. He was laid to rest in Concord cemetery. The funeral was conducted by his pastor in the presence of a host of friends. He leaves a father, mother, one sister and four brothers, and a host of friends to mourn his loss, but we mourn not as those who have no hope. He is gone, but he lives in our hearts. May his death be a means of grace to relatives and friends.

J. E. Hansford.
His S. S. Superintendent,

DAVIS.—The subject of this sketch, Bro. S. B. Davis, was born Jan. 15, 1844, and departed this life Nov. 11, 1913. He was married to Miss Elisa Ann Barnes Jan. 30, 1868. To them was born seven sons and three daughters, five of whom had preceeded him to the better land. Bro. Davis professed religion at the age of 25; joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South, remained in the same until his death. He suffered intensely with partial paralysis in his left side for eight years, which finally prostrated him about two months before his death. He had prayed for years that he might die sleeping. The dear Lord answered his prayer. About 10 hours before he went away he went to sleep and went to his eternal rest while in that condition. He stated to his wife and others that he was ready to go.

Live for Jesus dear ones and you will find father and companions where congregations never break up and Sabbaths have no end. The Concord church and Bright Star has lost an excellent steward and member, the community a good citizen, the wife a loving husband, the children an affectionate father.

Sleep on, dear one, take your rest, as you closed your eyes on this world they were opened to see God, the angels and the redeemed. God bless his sleeping dust until the angel shall sound the trumpet, and he shall rise to meet Jesus.

Hugh Revely, P. C.

DAVIS-Franklin Anderson Davis was born April 28, 1881, in Miller county, Arkansas, and quietly fell asleep in Jesus, October 18, 1902. His disease was fever and nervous prostration, and he suffered greatly for three weeks, but bore his suffering patiently. Frank was a good boy, strictly moral, but never accepted Christ as his Saviour until two weeks before his death; he told his mother that he was glad he did not die in the summer for I was a bad boy then, but I am ready now to meet the Lord, and eight days before his death he was received into the M. E. Church, South, by his pastor, W. W. Mills. He was laid to rest in Concord cemetery. The funeral was conducted by his pastor in the presence of a host of friends. He leaves a father, mother, one sister and four brothers, and a host of friends to mourn his loss, but we mourn not as those who have no hope. He is gone, but he lives in our hearts. May his death be a means of grace to relatives and friends.

REV. JOHN B. THOMAS.

The subject of this memoir, Rev. John B. Thomas, was born in Marlborough District, S. C., on February 22, 1832. In 1851 he moved to Mississippi, and the following year professed religion and joined the M. E. Church, South, at Old Friends[illegible] 1853 he was happily mar[illegible]ien Townsend, who survives him and utterly mourns his death. Shortly after his marriage he moved to Arkansas and settled near Old Spoonville, now Hollywood, Clark county, where he acquired some means by farming. He then moved to Black Springs, Ark., and went into the practice of law, which profession he followed with a good degree of success for a number of years. He was an efficient and useful man in the Church the greater part of his life; was steward and class leader at Black Springs for many years, and was loyal and true to the Church and his pastor.

He was licensed to preach in 1870 and made full proof of his ministry. Was a man of faith and courage. His business was always subordinated to his one great purpose—the preaching of the Gospel. To which he felt he was divinely called.

He was ordained a L. D. at Hot Springs by Bishop Daggett, in 1878.

He was addmitted on trial into the traveling connection of the Little Rock Conference at Hope in 1882, at which conference he was appointed to the Murfreesboro Circuit. He traveled the Pulaski Circuit in 1884-85-86; was received into full connection in the Conference of 1884. In 1887 and 1888 he traveled the Dearden Mission; was ordained elder at the Conference at Little Rock, December 11, 1887, by Bishop Galloway. In 1889-90 he traveled the Lapile Circuit, the Bartholomew Circuit in 1891 and the Hampton Circuit in 1892. He was returned to Bartholomew in 1893-94. In 1895 he served the Hamburg Circuit, and was returned in 1896, but on the 26th of last June God, who seeth not as men seeth suddenly called him from his loved employ to his home in heaven. He fell in the conflict with his face to the foe. He died at his post as only a man of God can die; was ill but one short hour. Rheumatism of the heart stopped the wheels of life and our brother went to God.

A good and valuable man has fallen. While he was not what the world calls a great preacher, yet he was full of faith and the Holy Spirit, and much people by him even added unto the Lord. He was a plain, practical preacher, aiming at the conversion of souls and the building up of the kingdom of our Christ. He dwelt with delight on the plain practical duties of religion, which he enforced with great earnestness and power.

He was devotedly adherent to all the doctrines of Methodism and subscribed without question to all her laws. He was true to God, loyal to the authority of the Church, faithful in the discharge of every known duty, practicing in his life what he taught to others. He was highly esteemed by his brethren in the ministry and all who knew him as a man of great moral worth. In all his ministry he was found to be blameless in life and official administration.

They loved him most who knew him best.

Wherever he went his warm, true heart and blameless life won for him the love and confidence of all the people and gave point and power to his preaching.

Death has taken our brother from us, and from the disconsolate widow whose aged form bends feebly to the tomb, but thank God death shall have a conqueror, and we shall meet again.

Let us emulate his Christian virtues, and be ready when the summons comes to meet our brother in the home of the pure and good. The blessing of God be upon all the bereaved relatives and friends.

J. C. Rhodes.

MILLS—Mrs. Arena Atchley Mills was born in Grant county, Ark., in 1875; was converted when quite young and joined the M. E. Church, South, under the ministry of the now sainted James Y. Christmas; was married to Rev. W. W. Mills in 1896, and died at the Methodist parsonage at Janssen, Polk county, Ark., January 16, 1905. She was truly a good woman. Her husband says: "She read the Bible much and had family prayers when I was away from home; I never heard her say one unkind word about anybody." It appears that in her last illness the great shadowing and overpowering blessing of His presence came upon her and that her last conscious words were in extolling the matchless love of the blessed Savior. To the sorrowing husband, children, mother, father, brothers, sisters and friends, live as she lived, die the triumphant death that she died and you shall meet her again in the habitation of the just at God's right hand.

20 yr search for parents of Ezekiel Wall, b. Nov 13, 1790 GA d. Apr 14, 1876 Chambers Co AL buried (we think) of his plantation at Cussetta. M. Martha Ann ? b. Aug 14, 1798, SC, d. Oct 25, 1865 Chambers Co AL. We also think she is buried on the plantation at Cussetta.
The family at one time had a hand made rocker with the initials HWW that was supposed to be the initials of Ezekiel Wall's father. We suspect Henry W. Wall of Twigg Co, GA.
Can someone help. CUTHRIELL@aol.com

Dear CUTHRIELL@aol.com>
This is terrific information. We have been looking for the same parents for Ezekiel had at least three brothers Shadrick, Solomon and Jesse and perhaps more. It has been theorized that their father was Henry Wall of Twiggs County. My family tradition has it that the grandfather to Marion Jackson Wall was in the American Revolution. Well he would have been a very young man with his family starting about 1785 and continuing until 1809. This is possible for a man - almost impossible for a woman. However, Henry Wall is the only known Wall who actually fought in the American Revoltion in Georgia. We are still searching. Where did you get this information? How are you related to this group and how many more descendants do you know? We have ton's of info to share on descendants - not much on ancestory. Sorry ! But we will try to help with what we know.

Hopefully a distant cousin, Martha A. McCorkle

P.S. Martha Ann was a Wilson according to a writeup for a grandson's legisaltive biography. (John Robert Wall, 1936). It is strange that she had a daughter who married a Wilson also - her name was Martha Ann also. Also Marion Jackson Wall married in 1863 in Schley County - home from leave from the War. Have a copy of Schley County marriage licsense.

Introduction

This book contains an index to the Columbia, Hempstead, Lafayette, Miller and Nevada County Confederate veterans upon whose service records applications for pensions from the state of Arkansas were based. The applicants were residents of Arkansas between 1891 when the first Arkansas pension legislation was enacted and 1939 when administration of the pension program was turned over to the newly created State Department of Welfare. Military service by the veterans might have been in any of the former Confederate or border states. Eligibility for pension was based on residency in Arkansas rather than military unit. Union pensions administered by the federal government were based on military service unit.

This book includes

- introductory material describing the information found in the application index;
- a complete summary of the Arkansas pension legislation;
- a list of Columbia Hempstead, Lafayette, Miller and Nevada County people granted pensions through legislative acts;
- a list of Columbia, Hempstead, Lafayette, Miller and Nevada County people who were residents of the Confederate Home;
- information about the 1911 Arkansas Confederate Veteran Census;
- notes about state pension board meeting minutes and warrants;
- suggestions for research in county level sources, newspapers, veterans' organizations, census records, manuscript collections and one surprising source.
- and finally, the index to Columbia, Hempstead, Lafayette, Miller and Nevada County applicants for Arkansas Confederate pensions – at least those for whom case files exist at the Arkansas History Commission.

The Pension Application Index

The information in this book about Columbia, Hempstead, Lafayette, Miller and Nevada County Arkansas Confederate pension applications was taken from an index volume created in the mid-1930's by the Works Progress Administration (WPA). That index has been microfilmed and is available at the Arkansas History Commission in Little Rock. The WPA index contains the veteran's name, application number; widow's name, her application number, and date of birth; the veteran's military company, regiment and division; years of service; application approval dates for veteran and widow; county from which enrolled; dates of death for veteran and widow. The WPA index is roughly in alphabetical order but in some instances rejected pensions are listed at the end of the initial's string. The WPA index has been annotated through the years by staff members of the Arkansas History Commission and unidentified others.

From the WPA pension book, the following categories of information were extracted: (Added annotations have been included in square brackets [ ] to distinguish them from original information in the WPA volume.)

- Veteran's name – When a military rank was included, it follows the veteran's name; titles such as Dr., Jr., Sr. etc. are transcribed just as in the original; race designations, "colored, Negro, etc." have been added just as found in the original material. A note of caution: spelling is unimportant; initials may be incorrect. Consider all variations.
- Widow's name – If the widow's last name differed from the veteran's, her surname was typed in parentheses ( ) in the WPA volume and that convention has been continued in this book. While this convention is commonly used in other sources to indicate a maiden name, it should not be taken as such in this book. Some women are listed as Mrs. William Smith, Mrs. Mary Smith, or Mary Smith. The omission of "Mrs." for some women apparently has no significance but the names are presented here as found in the WPA volume. In the few instances where a mother's pension was granted, the word "mother" has been substituted for "widow." Possibly some of the names of widows may be mother's names but if no notation was made in the WPA volume, the compiler had no way to distinguish them.

- Military Company – Following the veteran's name and widow's name (if any) is the veteran's military company following the abbreviation "Co." If no company was listed in the WPA volume, the company is omitted. The company is usually a single letter designation; however, it is often listed as the name of the captain of the company. Sometimes it was apparent the information listed in the company column was the name of the regiment's colonel but the information has been transcribed as found - no effort was made to correct "errors."

- Regiment – Regiments usually have a number designation but often are listed with the regimental commander's name. Thus, the 27th may also be listed Shaler's or Shaver's regiment. Obvious misspellings are included here just as found in the original volume. Colonel Crandall's name is found as the usual variants plus Cranol's, Krannel's, and others. When no regiment was listed, a dash was inserted in this record.

- Division – Most divisions are listed with the name of a state and whether infantry, cavalry or artillery. In many cases, the word "Volunteer" is inserted which could be any of the three. A dash has been inserted to show the omission of information in the original volume. No attempt has been made to "standardize" the information in the WPA volume - a regiment may be listed as the 27 Ark. Inf., 27 Ark. Mtd. Inf., 27 Ark. Cav., Shaler's Ark. Inf., Shaver's 27th Vols., etc. Some units are listed with the wrong state designation: Price's Ark. Cav. Again, the information is presented as found.

- Application Dates – The year of application (when listed) is shown for the veteran and widow, depending upon which applied. The WPA volume shows the day and month of application approval but since most all are in August in compliance with pension application requirements, the day and month are omitted from this index. When no date was listed, a question mark (?) has been inserted. Some applications were rejected, disallowed or barred. For the purposes of this index, all such pension applications show "Rej." following the date. Further inquiry into the original files will show the reason for non-approval. "Legis. Act" is noted where found in the WPA volume; however, a list of Columbia, Hempstead, Lafayette, Miller and Nevada County applicants who obtained pensions with legislative assistance is found elsewhere in this volume.

- County Enrolled From - Sometimes, a veteran and his widow enrolled from different counties. If so, the veteran and his widow are listed in both counties.

- Death Dates – The veteran's and/or widow's death dates are listed as they appeared in the WPA volume. The form of writing the date (the month as a number/day of the month/year in four digits) in the WPA volume has been transcribed as found in this index. When the death date was not specific, as much information as possible was given, i.e., "during the war," "after the war," "Fall 1878," etc. Most all of the deaths listed for the veterans between the years 1861 through 1865 are noted as service connected in some way.

Researchers are reminded the information found in square brackets [ ] appeared as handwritten annotations on the original WPA volume. No emphasis should be placed on spelling; all variations should be considered.

Copies of the Pension Files

Copies of the pension application files listed in the body of this book may be ordered from the Arkansas History Commission. The request should be directed to the Arkansas History Commission, One Capitol Mall, Little Rock, AR 72201.

The name of the veteran and his widow's name (if applicable) as shown in this index should be cited, along with the county from which he or she was enrolled (or applied), the military company, regiment and division, and year(s) of application. The request should specifically ask for photocopies of the Confederate pension application file. The original pension files and microfilmed copies of the files, both in alpha order by veterans' names, are available at the Arkansas History Commission. Requests for photocopies are generally made from the originals. Write for a price quotation. On-site researchers use copies of microfilmed files in the research room.

In addition, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints' Family History Library Centers are an access point for microfilmed copies of the Arkansas Confederate Pension files. Their locality catalog on microfiche or CD-ROM lists this information under Arkansas/Military.

The National Archives does not have copies of Confederate pension files for any state.

Arkansas Confederate Pension Legislation

A summary of the various pension acts should prove useful to researchers. Laws changed eligibility requirements through the years, especially for women. The first pension law in 1891 awarded pensions only to the unremarried widows of soldiers who died during the war; as of 1901, the soldier need not have died in the war for his widow to have received a pension; in 1905, mothers of some deceased veterans became eligible; in 1913, re-widowed widows became eligible but they had to be at least 35 years old and born before 1878; in 1937 a law said widows who had married veterans since 1 January 1927 were not eligible for pensions; and in 1939, an eligible widow had to have been born before 1870 unless she was the first wife of a veteran.

The following summary of the pension laws should be helpful, but copies of the actual acts may furnish additional details. The Arkansas History Commission, the Arkansas Supreme Court Library, the Library of Congress and many law libraries have copies of the Arkansas statute books. The act number and year should prove enough citation to request a copy of the statute.

Act 91 of 1891

On 1 April 1891, the Arkansas legislature approved Act 91, "An Act for the Relief of Certain Soldiers of the Late War Between the States." The act described those eligible to receive pensions and the process necessary for application through payment.

A twelve months' residency in the state was required before an application for pension could be made.

Those "indigent and incapacitated for manual labor by reason of a wound received while in discharge of his duty as a soldier or sailor in the service of the State of Arkansas or of the Confederate States of America" (including those who fought from other States) were eligible for pensions as were unremarried widows of officers, soldiers and sailors who died during the war.

The men "totally incompetent to perform manual labor" because of wounds received were allowed $100 per year; those who lost a leg above the knee or an arm above the elbow, $75 per year; those who lost a foot or leg below the knee, or hand or arm below the elbow, or those with an arm or leg rendered useless by a wound were allowed $50 per year; those who had lost an eye, all indigent unremarried widows and other soldiers disabled by wounds received $25 per year. In the event the appropriation by the General Assembly fell short, the available funds were to be paid "pro rata" among those eligible.

To apply for a pension, the officer, soldier or sailor had to file an application with the County Court in the county in which he lived on or before the first Monday in July. A county pension board consisting of the County Judge, Sheriff and County Clerk, first examined the application and its accompanying proofs, then, when satisfied about its validity, sent it to the State Auditor. The blank application forms were to be furnished to the county clerks by the State Auditor. The application had to show proof of indigency, the company and regiment in which the soldier was serving when wounded, whether he was receiving any other type of aid, and that he was a citizen of Arkansas. An affidavit had to be attached by "one or more creditable witnesses" saying they knew the information in the application was true. The papers submitted were to be kept on file in the Auditor's Office.

The State Board of Pensions consisted of the Governor, Attorney General and Auditor, and they were to examine each case forwarded to them by the county clerks. Following approval by both the county and state pension boards, the applicant was paid with a warrant or check from the Auditor's Office after 1 September each year. No one drawing a Union pension for injuries during the war between the States was eligible for a Confederate pension from the State of Arkansas. The law also said it was illegal for speculators to purchase pension rights from eligible soldiers. Neither attorneys nor other persons were allowed to charge fees to help applicants file a pension application.

The warrants issued for pension payments were to be sent from the Auditor's Office to "the recorder of deeds of the County in which the pensioner resides." The Auditor was also to send the recorder of deeds a list of the pensioners entitled to payment.

The law made appropriation for a Confederate Home "as is now established by the Ex-Confederate Association of Arkansas," but no resident of the home was entitled to draw a pension.

Act 22 of 1893

On 16 February 1893, at the next session of the General Assembly, the 1891 act was amended to clarify pension amounts. Those men who had lost a hand or foot were allowed $75 per year. Those partially disabled by wounds other than the loss of limbs were to receive between $25 and $75 per year, depending upon the discretion of the county pension board and subject to examination by a physician. Indigent, unremarried widows of those who died in the war received $25 per year. The amendment also said the widows of pensioners could continue to receive the same pension amount her husband had drawn before his death.

In reality, the amounts the pensioners received was less than the amount allowed by law because revenues collected fell short of the total amount needed.

Act 14 of 1895 allowed blind ex-Confederates who otherwise met the requirements a pension of $75 annually. Act 154 of 1899 restated the pension awards already in effect but made a special provision for inmates of the Confederate Home who could now take a yearly 30-day furlough, subject to approval, and receive $10 in cash during the furlough.

Act 43 of 1901

On 11 March 1901, the legislature passed a revision in the pension laws. Those eligible included "every person who enlisted and served as a soldier or sailor in the army or navy of the Confederate States of America, or of one of the States thereof, and who is indigent and incapacitated for the performance of manual labor in the ordinary avocations of life, by reason of wounds received in the discharge of his duty as such soldier or sailor, or who is now so incapacitated by reason of age, accident or disease, not the result of his own vicious habits, which habits are still persisted in." Further, "every indigent widow, remaining unmarried, of any deceased soldier or sailor, who rendered honorable service in the army or navy of the Confederate States of America, or of any one of the states thereof, and has departed this life, either during or since the war between the States" was eligible. No longer need the widow's husband have died in service. The twelve-month residency period was still in effect.

Pension amounts were $100 per year for those totally incapacitated; between $25 and $75 for partial disability; unremarried indigent widows of those who died during the war received $100 while those whose husbands died after the war received $50 per year.

Indigency was defined in the act and meant the husband and wife had less than $400 in real and personal property (household goods and wearing apparel excluded), and did not have any income that exceeded $150 per year.

An honorable discharge, parole or release was a requirement for a successful pension application. No deserters.

The exact wording of the pension application form is given in the 1901 act. Two "disinterested" witnesses were required unless the county board decided it impractical to find two, but the county board could require additional proof "when the case seems to require it."

Whereas the county pension board had formerly consisted of the County Judge, Sheriff and County Clerk, it was from this time to be composed of "three discreet citizens... who shall be qualified electors, not less than fifty years of age, of well-established reputation for good judgment, honest intentions and upright life, holding no office and, so far as known, aspirants for none, and who have no claim on the pension fund provided by this Act." They were to serve without pay but were exempt for jury duty during their terms.

The county boards were to meet on the second Monday of July each year and stay in session until all applications had been reviewed. The paper trail led from the county board to the county clerk to the State Auditor. The law only required copies of the records to be kept for two years in the Auditor's office.

The state pension board was now to consist of the Secretary of State, the Auditor, and "the presiding or commanding officer, for the time being, of the State organization of the Confederate Veterans."

After favorable review by county and state boards, the pension applicant was required to file with the Auditor a certificate from his county clerk. Warrants were to be issued after September 1 of each year and sent to the county clerks for distribution.

In 1903, Act 190 specified the right of a widow of heirs of a pensioner to become the payee of the warrant in the event the pensioner died before its receipt.

Act 325 of 1905

In 1905, the General Assembly decided widowed mothers of soldiers who "died single" during or since the war (and left no widow) were eligible for pensions in the amount of $50 per year.

1907 Laws

Act 48 of 1907 provided for artificial legs for veterans and the application process went through the county pension boards.

Act 52 of 1907 increased the pension amounts for widows whose husbands had died after the end of the war and to widowed mothers of deceased veterans to $100 per year.

Act 76 of 1907 provided for the re-examination of pensioners whose disabilities had increased since their initial application. Proof of service was not required for the application for increase.

Act 325 of 1909

In 1909 the legislature passed a law describing the payment procedure to heirs of deceased pensioners. The money from the last payment was to go for burial expenses and medical bills of the last illness.

Acts 34 and 83 of 1913

In 1913, under Act 34, re-widowed widows of Confederate veterans were declared eligible to apply for pensions: "...any applicant who is otherwise entitled to a pension as a widow of a Confederate soldier or sailor shall not be excluded from the right to receive such pension by reason of being married subsequent to the death of such soldier or sailor husband, provided she be a widow at the time of making her application."

Pension amounts were changed to $100 per year for all classes of pensioners by Act 83 of 1913. However, an age restriction was placed on widows: "...no widow under the age of thirty-five shall draw a pension... no widow born since 1878 shall receive a pension." For the first time in the pension legislation, the phrase "legally married" was applied to the widow.

Act 101 of 1915

In 1915, yet another law affecting pensions was enacted, again describing the classes of people eligible for pensions and setting forth the wording of the pension application. The indigency requirement was redefined to read, "neither the applicant himself, nor his wife, now both, shall be the owner of property, real or personal, in excess of the value of five hundred dollars, household goods excluded, nor in the enjoyment of an income, annuity, pension, the emoluments of an office or wages for their service of the value of two hundred and fifty dollars per year, provided that in computing the amount of property owned by the applicant, his or her homestead shall be exempted."

Purging the Rolls

Act 378 of 1923 and Act 158 of 1929 called for a "purging" of the pension rolls; removing the names of those not entitled to a pension. Act 158 went so far as to appropriate funds for clerical help to investigate all the applications on file. The state pension board was empowered to call upon the county boards for additional proofs when necessary. Further, a five-year residency requirement was enacted. Act 97 of 1927 was repealed by the 1929 law. Act 97 had allowed applicants who could not furnish proof of service to substitute "affidavits of two or more reputable persons that they have known the applicant personally for two years, and that his reputation is good, and that he is worthy of belief." Possibly, abuse of this provision led to its repeal at the next legislative session and the enactment of the five-year residency requirement. Act 67 of 1927 appropriated money for file cabinets and a bookkeeping machine for the Auditor's Office to manage "over 11,000" Confederate pensions on file. Act 248 of 1927 provided for monthly payments to widows of Confederate pensioners and expedited the widow's enrollment.

Act 245 of 1937

Purging the rolls was again a problem in 1937 — Act 245 begins "Whereas, it is currently charged that there are many names of the pension rolls at the present time drawing pensions that are not entitled to do so..." The classes of those eligible is again set out. Widows who had married soldiers after 1 January 1927 were not eligible. The residency requirement was changed back to 12 months preceding the date of application.

To investigate the rolls, a five-member committee, "Pension Claims Committee," was appointed by the Governor. At least three were to be members in good standing of the United Daughters of the Confederacy. They were to investigate not only the Confederate pension rolls but also the residents of the Confederate Home. The Committee was to report their findings to the State Pension Board and those not eligible were to be taken off the pension rolls or discharged from the Confederate Home.

Act 207 of 1939

In 1939, the State Department of Public Welfare was created and authority for overseeing Confederate pensions was transferred to the new agency. Federal matching funds made more money available for pension payments. The classes of people eligible remained much the same except that eligible widows had to have been born before 1870 "unless she be the widow of such soldier or sailor by his first marriage."

An annex was to be constructed on the Confederate Home to be used as a home for the indigent mothers and widows of veterans who, while living, "came within the designation of persons entitled to be admitted to the Confederate Home." The annex was also to be a home for indigent ex-Confederate soldiers and their wives. To be admitted, widows had to prove birth prior to 1870 or that she was the widow of a soldier by his first marriage. Those already in the home were not affected by the new provisions.

The Pension Claims Committee's powers were still in force. The pension rolls, after purging by the Committee, were to be transferred to the State Department of Public Welfare.

Pensioners from Legislative Acts

Some pension applicants needed legislative assistance to obtain benefits. A few were inadvertently left off county lists, a few were non-residents of Arkansas, some did not meet the letter of the law, and most had some extenuating circumstances that made a legislative act the answer to the situation. These private acts supply varying amounts of information.

Copies of these Acts may be found in Arkansas statute books found at the Arkansas History Commission, Arkansas Supreme Court Library, Library of Congress or law libraries. Journals of the Arkansas House of Representatives and Arkansas Senate might supply additional information about the background of a particular act. These can be found at the Arkansas History Commission, Arkansas Supreme Court Library and on microfilm at the Library of Congress.

The following people from Columbia, Hempstead, Lafayette, Miller and Nevada Counties were either added to the pension rolls or granted an appropriation during the period 1893 through 1939. The list is relatively complete; however, some pensioners may be omitted if they were left out of the indexes to the statutes. These pensioners may or may not be included in the index to pension applications and they may or may not have an extant case file.

Arkansas Confederate Home

In 1890, a group of citizens formed the Ex-Confederate Association of Arkansas, purchased sixty acres of land near Sweet Home, south of Little Rock, and proposed building a facility for indigent Confederate veterans. At the next meeting of the Arkansas legislature, the state made appropriation for the home and received the deed for the property from the Association. The Confederate Home operated at the Sweet Home location until 1955 when a new building was constructed on the grounds of Arkansas' Deaf and Blind Schools in Little Rock. The home was closed in 1963.

A series of laws through the years made appropriations and set some regulations for the Confederate Home. A few residents were admitted through special legislative acts, but most applied through the standard administrative process. Arkansas Confederate pension laws remained consistent in a policy of not granting pensions to residents of the home. There may be some overlap; however, as an indigent, incapacitated veteran might have been a pensioner before his admission to the home.

Files on the residents of the Confederate Home are at the Arkansas History Commission and these are on microfilm as well as in the original condition. Both the microfilm and original files are arranged in alphabetical order by resident's name. Besides the case files, miscellaneous administrative papers are available in a manuscript collection at the Arkansas History Commission. The finding aid to the collection [Guide to Arkansas History Commission Manuscript Collections, Book 2, pages 61- 89, (unpublished)] includes a list of about 1,400 people who applied for admission in the Confederate Home and those from the selected counties for this volume are listed below.

Requests for copies of the case files for those people listed below should be directed to the Arkansas History Commission, One Capitol Mall, Little Rock, AR 72201. The request should state the resident's name and county and ask for a price quotation for a photocopy of the Confederate Home case file.

The list has also been reproduced in the Arkansas Family Historian, Vol. 25, Nos. 3 & 4, September/December 1987, and Vol. 26, No. 1, March 1988, quarterly publication of Arkansas Genealogical Society, PO Box 908, Hot Springs, AR 71902.

Information in these case files can be very informative. Veterans were asked to list their children (most of whom were married) and their respective places of residence. Some of the people who applied for residency in the home were children of Confederate veterans. For example, Ida and Margaret Lancaster were daughters of Confederate veteran John R. B. Lancaster of Stone County and they applied for residency when they were elderly, unmarried women in need of care. Correspondence, death certificates, receipts, physician's reports and miscellaneous papers are also included in the case files in addition to application materials.

1911 Arkansas Confederate Veteran Census

Act 353 of 1911 provided for an enumeration of Arkansas' Confederate veterans by the tax assessors of each county. Remuneration to county officials was small for completing the lengthy questionnaires and compliance was incomplete. 1,757 questionnaires are on file at the Arkansas History Commission, One Capitol Mall, Little Rock, AR 72201 They cover 44 of Arkansas' 75 counties: Arkansas, Ashley, Benton, Boone, Bradley, Carroll, Chicot, Cleburne, Cleveland, Columbia, Conway, Crawford, Desha, Drew, Faulkner, Franklin, Fulton, Hempstead, Howard, Independence, Jefferson, Lafayette, Lee, Little River, Logan, Marion, Miller, Newton, Ouachita, Perry, Phillips, Pope, Prairie, Saline, Scott, Searcy, Sebastian, Sevier, Sharp, Union, Van Buren, Washington, White and Yell.

Published abstracts of the questionnaires in three volumes and a complete, every-name index to all three volumes are available from Bobbie Jones McLane, Arkansas Ancestors, 222 McMahan Drive, Hot Springs, AR 71913 The series is titled, Arkansas 1911 Census of Confederate Veterans. Write for current price and availability.

When available, the questionnaires may contain a great deal of family and military information. Some of the abstracts in the three volume series published by Arkansas Ancestors are only one or two lines in length. Others, however, run to several pages of wonderful data. Questionnaire respondents were asked about military service, education, politics, ancestors, wives, children, in-laws and more. Information provided often goes back to the Revolutionary War ancestor or countries of ancestors' origins.

Even if a particular research subject has no extant 1911 questionnaire, a thorough researcher should examine the Arkansas 1911 Census of Confederate Veterans series for the names of relatives of the same surname, relatives with different surnames, in-laws, and associated families. If, for example, an ancestor lived in Izard County for which there are no extant 1911 questionnaires, a cousin, brother, or brother-in-law in Fulton County might have given detailed information which could have an impact on the research process.

State Pension Board Records

Besides the case files of Arkansas Confederate pension applicants, the Arkansas History Commission has manuscript materials relating to these records in a collection, "Records of the State Auditor of Arkansas, Ex-Confederate Pension Records, 1893-1939." This material has been microfilmed on 11 rolls and is available for research at the Arkansas History Commission. The finding aid is found in Guide to the Arkansas History Commission Manuscript Collections, Book 27, pages 96-99, (unpublished).

The material includes

- Minutes of the State Board of Pensions, containing a list of pension claims allowed: February 3, 1893 - August 9, 1905; August 5, 1907 - 1916; June 14, 1929 - September 11, 1939.
- Registers of pension warrants issued: August 27, 1891 - September 1899, (by warrant number).

- Registers of Ex-Confederate pension records: August 5, 1891 - December 15, 1939 (by county).

There are names in this material of Confederate pensioners not found in the alphabetical list of case files to which this book is an index. If other evidence of receipt of an Arkansas Confederate pension is found, but no case file can be located, this material might yield additional information.

Warrants Issued After 1939

Information about warrants issued to Confederate pensioners after authority for their administration was turned over to the State Department of Welfare can be found in the records of the State Auditor's Office, and are currently available for research on microfilm in Room 7 in the basement of the capitol building. The auditor's staff does not perform searches in the material. Warrants are arranged by warrant number and are not segregated by subject so it would be necessary to search through all the warrants issued by the state from year to year to trace the payment record of Arkansas Confederate pensioners still receiving payments after 1939.

Case Files After 1939

The State Department of Welfare evolved and ballooned into today's Arkansas Department of Human Services. Records of pensioners still alive in 1939 whose cases were transferred to this agency should exist in this agency's records. Inquiries about access to closed case files in their custody met with no success and great resistance. They cite unspecific state and federal privacy laws as their excuse for not releasing information about deceased persons not protected by privacy laws. In the opinion of the compiler of this volume, this agency appears to represent government bureaucracy at its worst and it is unfortunate records created by our ancestors are inaccessible.

Other Sources of Information

Besides the records mentioned thus far, a variety of other materials which potentially hold information about Arkansas' Confederate pensioners is available.

County Records

County officials were the initial contact point for Confederate pension applications. A thorough search of county records may reveal lists of pensioners and other records. In counties which have separate county and circuit court clerks, both offices should be combed for records created in the time period a research subject was known to have lived in the county. While no separate book may have been used to record information about Confederate pensioners, county court minutes books may be a good starting point.

Newspapers

Newspapers in local areas often published lists of Confederate pensioners. Since the local pension boards met in July and warrants were issued in September, it is possible to scan that time period, year after year, for information published in newspapers. The Arkansas History Commission has a large collection of microfilmed newspapers.

Confederate Organizations

Many ex-Confederates belonged to patriotic organizations such as United Confederate Veterans and later Sons of Confederate Veterans. The Confederate Veteran magazine, published between 1893 and 1932, has been reprinted by Broadfoot Publishing Company, Route 4, Box 508C, Wilmington, NC 28405, and is available at many large libraries. A thorough, three-volume index to the series has also been published by Broadfoot. Searches should be made in the index by military unit as well as personal name.

United Daughters of the Confederacy, a patriotic lineage society, has been active for many years and local or state chapters may have published material of interest to researchers. For the address of a local chapter, contact UDC, Memorial Building, 328 N. Blvd., Richmond, VA 23220.

Sons of Confederate Veterans, a patriotic lineage society for male descendants of ex-Confederates, among other activities, has been active in marking or otherwise memorializing graves of deceased Confederate soldiers. Their national headquarters is Box 5164, Hattiesburg, MS 39401. Contact the SCV for information about the nearest chapter.

These organizations held reunions for members and those gatherings may have generated records. The national reunion for United Confederate Veterans was held in Little Rock in May 1911 and attracted some 60,000 guests to the city. A card file of attending veterans listing name, current post office address, military company, regiment, brigade, commands and address while in Little Rock, is available at the Arkansas History Commission, and has been microfilmed.

Census Records

The information in this index can help locate veterans on population schedules of federal census records in 1900, 1910 and 1920 (as of March, 1992). The county and year of application should provide clues to location. The 1910 census returns have a column to indicate whether the person listed was a Union or Confederate veteran. Census records also show general proximity of neighbors. Even if a pension application was not submitted by a particular research subject, he may have served as a witness for a neighbor's pension application. Using the 1910 census which identifies veterans, the other veterans in an area where a research subject lived should be investigated and their files examined. Also, the research subject's military service company should be carefully examined in war records and the names of those who served together in a particular company should be checked in this pension index. Comrades-in-arms may have contacted one another to verify service for pension application purposes.

Manuscript Collections

The Arkansas History Commission and many university libraries in Arkansas have excellent collections of manuscript materials which may potentially be very helpful in locating information about Confederate veterans. During the research process, names of those associated with a particular veteran should be noted and those names, especially those of prominent military or community leaders, should be checked in examining indexes or finding aids to manuscript collections. The Library of Congress has published an extensive index to manuscript collections housed in repositories in unexpected places called The National Union Catalog to Manuscript Collections. Many large reference libraries have this series and its supplements.

County Histories

Especially in southern states, the War Between the States' impact on local history is noted in county histories. Published histories can be used to locate information about military units raised in a particular area and veterans' activities after the war.

Union Records

Although not a popular resource with researchers interested in Confederate research, Union pension records may yield some surprising information. Some Confederate soldiers changed sides during the war and rendered military service for the Union side. Union pensions were far larger than Confederate pension amounts and if a veteran could apply for either pension, his choice might have been motivated by money rather than sentiment.

Calvin V. Moffitt of Lawrence County served in two Arkansas Confederate units but when he applied for a pension, he claimed a few months' service in a Union unit and tried three times unsuccessfully qualify for a Union pension. The records created by the pension process were far more rewarding for descendants than they were for Calvin. David H. Grimes served as a 3rd lieutenant in the 27th Arkansas Confederate Infantry but his widow applied for a Union pension, claiming he had served briefly in 1864 in a Union unit.

Union pensions were based on military service unit, not geographic residence. An index on microfilm General Index to Pension Files 1861-1934, (National Archives microfilm publication T288) lists Union soldiers from all states (including Arkansas) who applied for pensions. This index is available at the Arkansas History Commission; National Archives in Washington, DC and its branches; larger research facilities with genealogical collections; and through the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints' Family History Library Centers. Copies of the pension files themselves may be from the National Archives with form NATF-80 (revised).

Other States' Confederate Pension Records

Eligibility for an Arkansas Confederate pension, as in other states which granted pensions for Confederate service, was based upon residency. If a research subject lived in another state during the period pensions were granted, he or his widow may have applied for benefits in that state. Following is a list of other states which granted Confederate pensions and the dates of their earliest legislation. As in Arkansas, pension laws passed by individual state legislatures changed through time, usually becoming more liberal.

Introduction

This book contains an index to the Columbia, Hempstead, Lafayette, Miller and Nevada County Confederate veterans upon whose service records applications for pensions from the state of Arkansas were based. The applicants were residents of Arkansas between 1891 when the first Arkansas pension legislation was enacted and 1939 when administration of the pension program was turned over to the newly created State Department of Welfare. Military service by the veterans might have been in any of the former Confederate or border states. Eligibility for pension was based on residency in Arkansas rather than military unit. Union pensions administered by the federal government were based on military service unit.

This book includes

- introductory material describing the information found in the application index;
- a complete summary of the Arkansas pension legislation;
- a list of Columbia, Hempstead, Lafayette, Miller and Nevada County people granted pensions through legislative acts;
- a list of Columbia, Hempstead, Lafayette, Miller and Nevada County people who were residents of the Confederate Home;
- information about the 1911 Arkansas Confederate Veteran Census;
- notes about state pension board meeting minutes and warrants;
- suggestions for research in county level sources, newspapers, veterans' organizations, census records, manuscript collections and one surprising source.
- and finally, the index to Columbia, Hempstead, Lafayette, Miller and Nevada County applicants for Arkansas Confederate pensions – at least those for whom case files exist at the Arkansas History Commission.

The Pension Application Index

The information in this book about Columbia, Hempstead, Lafayette, Miller and Nevada County Arkansas Confederate pension applications was taken from an index volume created in the mid-1930's by the Works Progress Administration (WPA). That index has been microfilmed and is available at the Arkansas History Commission in Little Rock. The WPA index contains the veteran's name, application number; widow's name, her application number, and date of birth; the veteran's military company, regiment and division; years of service; application approval dates for veteran and widow; county from which enrolled; dates of death for veteran and widow. The WPA index is roughly in alphabetical order but in some instances rejected pensions are listed at the end of the initial's string. The WPA index has been annotated through the years by staff members of the Arkansas History Commission and unidentified others.

From the WPA pension book, the following categories of information were extracted: (Added annotations have been included in square brackets [ ] to distinguish them from original information in the WPA volume.)

- Veteran's name – When a military rank was included, it follows the veteran's name; titles such as Dr., Jr., Sr. etc. are transcribed just as in the original; race designations, "colored, Negro, etc." have been added just as found in the original material. A note of caution: spelling is unimportant; initials may be incorrect. Consider all variations.
- Widow's name – If the widow's last name differed from the veteran's, her surname was typed in parentheses ( ) in the WPA volume and that convention has been continued in this book. While this convention is commonly used in other sources to indicate a maiden name, it should not be taken as such in this book. Some women are listed as Mrs. William Smith, Mrs. Mary Smith, or Mary Smith. The omission of "Mrs." for some women apparently has no significance but the names are presented here as found in the WPA volume. In the few instances where a mother's pension was granted, the word "mother" has been substituted for "widow." Possibly some of the names of widows may be mother's names but if no nota-

Told to me by Letha Allen, daughter of John Thomas Davis who was the son of Simon Bolivar Davis:

The Davis came to Ark. right after the Civil War. Don't know if Barnes came at the same time. They first settled at Stamps Ark., around Walnut Ridge. Came West by wagon train. Their slaves (ex) wanted to come with them so they hid them in the wagon. Davis rode on the lead wagon with his musket across his knees and said that he would kill any blankety blank Yankee that tried to stop them. Family tradition says that Davis was a lawyer and after successfully fording the Red River at Shreveport the wagon carrying his law books was lost in Cross Bayou in Shreveport.

Nancy Davis married a Sherman who was killed in the Civil War and she never married again. Made her home with brother Richard. Both buried at Concord Cemetary Richard Davis had family records which were lost in a house fire.

Eliza A., wife of Simon Bolivar Davis, Sr. was a Barnes and sister to Algernon Berry Barnes.

Samuel Davis son of Simon Bolivar Davis Sr. was first to be buried at Concord Cemetary.

He died shortly after the Davis settled at Sulpher, Ark.

Joseph Edgar Davis, son of Simon Bolivar Davis, Sr. was a big tease. He lived in Miller Co., Ark., but farmed land in La. in the Cottons. Grew cotton and camped out there during growing season. One day he was riding his horse thru Mira, La. and at the store of Dominick and Lawton, Mr. Dominick came out and asked him to get off his horse and tell a big lie. He told Mr. Dominick that he just didn't have time because his overseer had died and he was in a hurry to get to his farm and take care of things. He rode on and the people in Mira got food together to take to the overseer's family. When Mr. Dominick rode up with the food, the overseer met him, much to the astonishment of Mr. Dominick. About that time Joseph Edgar Davis rode up and when questioned about the situation he replied that whereas he didn't have time to get off his horse and tell a lie he just told one and kept riding. Joseph Edgar Davis owned land where the Barksdale A7B administration Bldg. now sits. He was forced to sell his land by the govern. and died soon after. He called his place Trilby Plantation.
